100 Yanks Slated To Be Returned From Cuba Sunday

HAVANA (AP) — One hundred Americans will return to the United States Sunday aboard an airliner bringing ransom medical supplies to Cuba a Swiss diplomat said today.

He said the plane was due to leave for Havana from Miami Fla. today but that the flight was delayed to give the repatriates time to get ready for the trip. The Americans have been living in Cuba and have expressed a desire to leave. They remained behind despite a general repatriation of Americans in Cuba some time ago.

A Pan American Airways DC6B already laden with 15,000 pounds of medicines, had been scheduled to take off today for Havana, but its departure was postponed until Sunday.

Pan American said the Red Cross, to which the flight was donated, requested the postponement. Spokesmen for the airline said they did not know the reason for the postponement.

In Washington the State Department refused to comment on the postponement and a Red Cross spokesman said he had been advised of the shift in dates but did not know why it had been done.

A DC6B seats more than 100 passengers. Without seats, it can carry nearly 200.

Plans were afoot previously for a special flight to bring 250 Cuban-Americans to Miami, but that flight was canceled abruptly last week.

Also eager to leave Cuba are more than 20 Americans, imprisoned on various counterrevolutionary charges, and hundreds of relatives of the Bay of Pigs invasion prisoners who were ransomed for $53 million in badly needed American food and medicine.

The flight set up for Sunday may be the last air shipment of ransom installments to Cuba. An ocean cargo liner, the 490-foot SS Shirley Lykes, is scheduled to load 6,000 tons of ransom at Baltimore and then call at Port Everglades, north of Miami. There it will take on another 1,000 tons of food, pharmaceuticals, biologicals, vitamins and insecticides to hand over to Fidel Castro.

Miss Olga Hobeck, 57, Thursday disclosed in a letter to the Internal Revenue Service that she had evaded paying income taxes by claiming four dependents on her payroll deduction although she supports only herself and her brother.

Miss Hobeck, who said she never has filed a tax return, works for a Loop law firm for $90 a week. She said she doesn't have much money but she would be willing to pay her back taxes if her brother, Arthur, 50, could get compensation from the Veterans Administration.

"I haven't even got a thousand dollars," Miss Hobeck said. "But unless they (the VA) help my brother, I'd go to jail rather than pay. If only he had been given $15 a week, I wouldn't have done it."

Miss Hobeck said her brother suffered a nervous breakdown in the Army in 1941 and after five months service was honorably discharged as a schizophrenic, or split personality. He has been unable to work since.

The VA said Hobeck was discharged in August 1941, before the start of World War II, and therefore does not qualify for compensation.

The IRS said Miss Hobeck's letter had not yet reached "proper channels." A spokesman said her case will be reviewed for review and examination, a procedure the IRS follows when a taxpayer reports an irregularity in return.

Newspaper Jurists To Give Report

NEW YORK (AP)—A fact-finding board of three jurists reports today on its inquiry into a printers' strike that has resulted in a blackout of New York's nine major newspapers for 35 days.

The fact-finding panel was set up last Sunday by federal, state and local officials.

Publishers are cooperating with the survey panel. But it has been boycotted by Bertram A. Powers, head of Local 6, International Typographical Union, AFL-CIO, pending a membership meeting Sunday. However, the board has been getting the union's side despite the absence of Powers.

The report will not be binding on either side, but the board hopes to crystallize the issues in order to encourage a settlement.

Woman, 85, Kills Mate With Pop Bottle Blow

CLEVELAND (Pa.) — Phillip Fedorchuk, 81, suffered fatal head blows inflicted by a pop bottle early today, police said. His wife, Eva, 85, was arrested.

Homicide detectives had difficulty questioning the Ukrainian woman, who does not speak English. But from her actions, detectives were convinced she struck the blows against her husband during a fight.

U.S., Soviet Quietly Explore Nuclear Test Ban Approach

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union are privately exploring new approaches to a nuclear test ban agreement, the Washington Post said today.

A new Soviet overture toward breaking the deadlock on international inspection of a test ban is understood to have been made to the United States, the Post said.

"The nature and details of this move have been kept secret, and it is believed to be still in an embryonic state," the Post said. "Whether it will in fact produce something tangible or end up as another false start is still unknown."

Vasily V. Kuznetsov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, is in Washington talking with U.S. officials. One of the subjects he discussed with President Kennedy Wednesday was disarmament.

Kuznetsov, former chief Soviet negotiator in the Geneva disarmament negotiations, conferred with Secretary of State Dean Rusk Thursday.

He meets today with William C. Foster, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

However, U.S. spokesmen have made a point of specifying that Kuznetsov's talks here have been "casual."

Kuznetsov just completed more than two months of Cuban crisis negotiations in New York and was invited to Washington for a round of conferences.

The Post, in a story by Murray Marder and Howard Simmons, noted that Serayon K. Tsarapkin, chief Soviet negotiators in the Geneva test ban talks arrived in New York Wednesday night.

"It is believed," the Post said, "that Tsarapkin will have discussions there, and possibly in Washington later, about a new approach to the American-Soviet deadlock on test ban inspection."

When Glenn drove up to the museum about a half hour before the general public was scheduled to be admitted he learned that a crowd of photographers and newsmen was waiting him near the famous painting. So without leaving his car he drove off.

A red-faced museum official explained to newsmen that Glenn had got "bogged down" in his schedule and would not keep the date at least not now.

This official J. Carter Brown assistant to the director of the museum was asked:

"Where do you suppose Glenn went when he left here?"

Brown said Glenn proceeded to the Air Museum. Asked what was at the Air Museum more intriguing than Mona Brown merely shrugged. He said Glenn might come to see the painting later although he was not sure.

BILL GOELLER, clerk in the county engineer's office, commented on the lightning and thunder heard and seen by many local residents last night. . . . Goeller said he had heard it was a sign of something but he wasn't sure what. . . .

An impromptu straw poll produced these answers — a sign of rain, a severe change in the weather, an approaching cold spell and an early spring. . . . The latter answer is probably more a wish than a true indicator of future weather conditions. . . .

Early morning motorists had to be very careful last night and early today. . . . The entire area was blanketed with a heavy fog. . . . This combined with wet highways made driving far from pleasant. . . .

The official weather report here list .86 inches of rain for the 24-hour period.

Miller, as chairman of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, is in a good position to help bring the metric system into use in the United States.

He introduced a bill Thursday to authorize a three year study by the National Bureau of Standards to determine the impact of the nation of a switch to the metric system.

It would mean a vast retooling for much of American industry.

It would mean buying meat by the kilogram, gasoline by the liter and dress material by the meter. But it would also mean goodbye to a confusing, complicated and illogical bunch of weights and measures that hardly deserve being called a system.

Of the major Western countries only the United States and Britain still cling to an independent system of weights and measures. And Miller says a high-ranking British government official told him Britain would follow in a minute if the United States went metric.

The metric system has already crept into the United States to a surprising degree. The pharmaceutical industry has embraced it — note that those shots you get are measured in cubic centimeters.

Most familiar of all is the U.S. money system based, thanks to Thomas Jefferson, on the 10s of the metric system. Jefferson also tried to install a metric system of weights and measures in the newborn nation, but failed.

Tornado Rips Tennessee Area

Spring Hill Suffers Extensive Damage

SPRING HILL, Tenn. (AP)—A freakish winter tornado hit this Middle Tennessee town early today, wrecked much of the business district, dozens of homes and destroyed two Negro churches. The twister skipped over an orphanage where 180 children slept. No serious injuries were reported.

At least eight commercial buildings, including a bank, were smashed and half the Spring Hill High School was demolished.

A unit of the Tennessee National Guard was called out to help law enforcement officers search for the injured, clear debris and guard against looting.

Rushed to this town of 650 were units of the Tennessee Highway Patrol, civil defense, the State Highway Department and linemen from telephone and power companies.

The only damage reported at the Tennessee Orphanage Home, a Church of Christ institution, was a tin roof blown from a barn, and uprooted trees. The orphanage is only 2,000 yards from the smashed business district.

Mayor R. B. Toome said he understood all the orphans slept through the violent storm.

U.S. 31, running through the center of town, was closed to traffic for several hours after the twister hit. It was later reopened.

Rebels Attack Supporters of Castro Regime

HAVANA (AP)—A small band of insurgents has attacked the home of a family of ardent supporters of Fidel Castro's revolution and burned down a government store in central Cuba the newspaper El Mundo reported today.

It said one family member was killed and two were wounded.

The newspaper story did not say when the attack occurred. It reported one of the attackers was arrested.

The attack was in the quaint colonial town of Trinidad on the south coast of the province of Las Villas about 280 miles from Havana. Las Villas has been the scene of previous counter-revolutionary activities.

El Mundo identified the leaders of the insurgent band as Pedro Gonzalez Sanchez and Jose Tapanes. It did not identify the one member of the band who was arrested.

The paper said the insurgents entered the home of Marin Valdivia whose brothers and sons were members of the revolutionary militia.

It said one of the family members was wounded in the leg at the outbreak of the raid. One of his brothers was killed and another wounded when they came to his aid.

After the raid the paper said the raiding party set fire to a nearby government-operated country general store.

"The group of criminals is being chased by revolutionary armed forces" the newspaper said.

Tshombe Gives OK To U.N. Parley

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—The South African Press Association reported today that Katanga President Moise Tshombe is believed to have asked his government ministers to suspend all scorched earth plans and meet him in Elisabethville for truce talks with the United Nations.

The news agency reported from Elisabethville that Tshombe "spoke from Elisabethville this morning to his ministers in Kolwezi over the Union Miniere du Haut Katanga radio network."

"It is believed Tshombe asked his ministers to come to Elisabethville and suspend all plans for blowing up the Kolwezi mining installations," the report said.

U.N. officials said Tshombe no longer was under house arrest because he showed willingness to cooperate with the United Nations. But they said he will have to observe the nightly curfew imposed on Elisabethville on Dec. 30 after U.N. forces seized control of the provincial capital.

A U.N. spokesman in New York said Tshombe will not be restrained otherwise unless he tries to incite Katangans against the United Nations or renews his call for a scorched-earth policy.

Tshombe told newsmen in Moikambo on the border of Northern Rhodesia that he made his tour Thursday "to stop bloodshed and prove my good intentions."

But he insisted at a news conference that every movement by U.N. troops in a new direction in his province must be negotiated beforehand. The British consulate in Elisabethville said Tshombe had given a guarantee only for the movement of U.N. troops to Sakania where the railroad crosses the Rhodesian border 200 miles southeast of Elisabethville.

The U.N. command still was apprehensive about the situation in Katanga the major industrial center 150 miles northwest of Elisabethville where diehard followers of Tshombe were reported ready to blow up the copper and cobalt plants and a power dam if the U.N. tried to move in.

There was no indication yet what the U.N. command plans to do about Katanga. A report from Kitwe just across the border in Northern Rhodesia said Katanga Interior Minister Godefroid Munongo left Moikambo for Kolwezi after conferring with Tshombe.

Secretary-General U Thant had ordered Tshombe put under house arrest Tuesday after the fiery president threatened to detonate the installations at Kolwezi if U.N. forces advanced on the town. The order was lifted after Tshombe offered to cooperate and he set out on his peace pilgrimage.

Tshombe drove to the border in a black sedan exhorting remnants of his troops not to fire on a U.N. column trying to open clogged road and rail supply lines from Northern Rhodesia to food-short Elisabethville.

Tshombe made the 174-mile journey to the border town of Moikambo without a shot being fired. A lone U.N. jeep escorted the presidential limousine as it moved slowly several miles ahead of the U.N. column.

The U.N. column camped for the night in Moikambo and planned to push on today to Sakania.

Winter's one-two punch—arctic air and blowing snow—hammered broad areas of the nation today. There appeared no immediate, general relief.

The icy front extended from the northern Appalachians southwestward through Texas and northward through southern Oregon. Gusts northerly winds swept much of the nation's midsection, causing much drifting of fresh falls of snow.

Temperatures plunged to 35 degrees below zero in Drummond, Mont. Readings of 20 below and lower were reported in much of Wyoming and Montana. The below-zero belt stretched from the western Great Lakes through the central and northern Rockies.

It was near zero in northern Texas. The mercury dropped sharply as the frigid air swept southward into the Texas Panhandle and through the Pacific Northwest.

In Laramie, Wyo., the reading of 25 below was 47 degrees lower than Thursday morning.

Snow was whipped into huge drifts in Nebraska, eastern Colorado and western Kansas. More than seven inches of snow fell in Sidney, Neb.

Heavy snow warnings were issued for northwestern Texas and Oklahoma. Glaze warnings were posted for areas from northern New Mexico eastward through northwestern Kansas and most of Missouri.

The mercury dropped to 11 below in Denver, 20 below in Cheyenne, Wyo., and 17 below in International Falls, Minn.

In Texas, it was 2 above in Dalhart and 4 above in Amarillo, but summer-like weather was reported in southern sections of Texas. The day's high reading in Texas was 91 in McAllen and 86 in Austin, a record for the month of January.

Unseasonably warm weather continued in the Southeast. There were thunderstorms in Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama and Georgia. Tennessee highway patrolmen reported a small tornado in Spring Hill, about 20 miles south of Nashville. Considerable property damage was reported. Two persons suffered minor injuries.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Three persons died today in traffic accidents blamed on slippery snow-covered highways in northwestern Ohio.

Freezing rain followed by a light snowfall made travel on area highways treacherous.

A Lucas County man died when his car collided with a truck on the Detroit-Toledo Expressway, a half mile south of Ohio 51 in Wood County. Killed was Glen W. Grice, 50.

Two drivers were killed when their trucks skidded on icy pavement and collided on U.S. 6, two miles south of Bryan in Williams County. Dead were Sam Wayne Jones, 30, Defiance and Delbert Fry, 38, of Bloomdale, Wood County.

Experts Give Detailed Report

POSSIBILITIES LISTED FOR ADDED REVENUE

COLUMBUS Ohio (AP)—Taxes can be raised at the state and local level in Ohio without injuring the economic climate or driving away business six university and college economics experts have concluded in a tax study released today.

The study which began last March was jointly sponsored by the Ohio Education Association, the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants, the Ohio AFL-CIO and the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. Sponsors emphasized that it is not a series of specific recommendations for lawmakers but merely information which might be used in seeking sources of revenue.

Among the possibilities suggested in the 255-page report are:

That additional income could be derived from the state sales tax by including certain personal services such as laundries, barber shops, auto repair shops, jewelry repair shops and movie theaters. This could bring in as much as $40.6 million above the present approximate $254 million derived annually from the tax researchers said.

That if sales under 31 cents were subject to the sales tax revenues could be increased about $11.5 million annually.

That an increase of 1 cent per pack of cigarettes would yield $13 million additionally and an increase of 2 cents per bottle on malt beverages would provide about $7.6 million more in excise tax income based on sales of the past bookkeeping year.

That a state personal income tax has both advantages and disadvantages although 33 states already have such a tax.

Parody Used To Wind Up DiSalle Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Welfare Director Mary Gorman entertained outgoing Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's final cabinet meeting today with a popular song parody highlighting the four-year Democratic administration.

Mrs. Gorman frequently at odds with the legislature and various officials over welfare activities recounted her experiences to the tune of the song "Thanks for the Memory." Sections went like this:

Thanks for the memory of four years at the top of fights you couldn't stop of seminars and battle scars the press I'd like to bop. Sam Thompson's too much. (Thompson is Statehouse reporter for the Columbus Dispatch.) The parody continued:

"Thanks for the memory of Doctors Dwork and Haines the latter gave us pains. The liquor mess the board requests. The rides on Preston's planes. I'll miss you so much. Ralph Dwork health director Dr. Robert Haines, former mental hygiene chief and Highway Director Everett S. Preston.

Other parts of the parody worked in the names of most cabinet members and aides in the governor's office.

Ohio Dems To Attend 'Gala' for President

An ocean cargo liner, the 480-foot SS Shirley Lykes, is scheduled to load 6,000 tons of ransom at Baltimore and then call at Port Everglades, north of Miami. There it will take on another 1,000 tons of food, pharmaceuticals, biologicals, vitamins and insecticides to hand over to Fidel Castro.

ready tax individual income. The report said that a tax of 10 per cent of the federal income tax paid by Ohioans could yield as much as $250 million a year.

That a boost from 2 to 5 mills in the corporate franchise tax could bring in an additional $25 million.

Present state and local tax systems are "definitely regressive," the report contends because total tax payment goes down as percentage of personal income goes up.

"Taxes in Ohio are 'too low' if the residents of the state prefer to give up in the form of taxes a larger share of their incomes for government to use to provide a higher level of public services . . . on the other hand taxes in Ohio are 'too high' if the citizenry of the state wish to retain a larger share of their income for private disposal and have a lower level of public services," the report says.

"The choice lies with the people of Ohio."

The four sponsoring organizations said they took no part in the study except to finance it. Dr. George W. Thatcher chairman of Miami (Ohio) University's economic Department had over-all direction working with Dr. William F. Hellmuth of Oberlin College. Dr. William L. Henderson of Denison University Dr. Chalmers Monteith of Kent State University Dr. Wallace I. Edwards of Miami University and Dr. Helen A. Cameron of Ohio State University.

37th Division Organization Change Is OK'd

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Authority to reorganize the Ohio National Guard's 37th Infantry Division has been received by Maj. Gen. Loren G. Windom, Ohio Adjutant General who leaves that office Monday but remains as division commander.

Windom had been urging the Pentagon for immediate reorganization rather than wait two years.

The 37th now is a pentomic division with five battle groups. The new organization is the so-called ROAD concept, planned for all U.S. divisions, reserve and regular, to better meet battlefield demands. ROAD stands for Reorganization Objective Army Division.

The new division will consist of a "division base" to include artillery, engineer, medical, reconnaissance, aviation supply and service units; three tactical brigades, six infantry battalions and two armor battalions.

Windom termed the reorganization a "major victory" for the National Guard in its present conflict with the secretary of defense. Under the former Department of Defense plan, reorganization would have been in 1965.

Completion of reorganization, Windom said, is planned prior to summer field training Aug. 4-18 at Camp Grayling, Mich.

Work Continues On Appropriations

Pickaway County's Board of Commissioners were scheduled to meet again today for continued work on the county's appropriations for 1963.

Spokesmen said the Commission hopes to have the appropriations completed by today or tomorrow. However, they probably will not be accepted and placed on the minutes until Monday's regular meeting.

The Board, reorganized Monday, spent most of this week working on the financial aspect of the county government, along with other scheduled business.

Kennedy To Push U.S. Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has decided to assert a more vigorous and determined American leadership in world affairs even at the cost of creating major frictions with U.S. allies, especially in Europe.

The President's determination is clearly disclosed in a discussion he held with newsmen in Palm Beach last week, a partial text of which the White House made public Thursday night. As originally reported, the views could not be attributed directly to Kennedy.

What he said apparently represents the hardening of an attitude which has been developing within the administration for many months.

The fact that he said it, in response to a question, emphasizes his present conviction that the United States can get the results it wants on some important issues only by following what amounts to an independent policy.

Kennedy said he thought that "too often in the past we have defined our leadership as an attempt to be rather well regarded in all these countries."

"The fact is," he said, "you can't possibly carry out any policy without causing major frictions."

He said he thought the United States "ought to be more aware" of the fact that "we are going to incur, at intervals, people's displeasure."

As evidence, Kennedy noted that in dealing with the Congo situation the United States has been following a policy "somewhat" different "from that of Great Britain and other countries in giving strong support to the United Nations in its effort to bring about unification of the divided African nation."

When he first expressed his views to newsmen at Palm Beach he was talking "for background." This meant that reporters could report the views but could not say directly that the President had stated them at a background news conference.

As comments now on the record, they constitute probably the strongest assertion of the need for independent U.S. action on some occasions that a president has made since the United States began to build the present system of alliances 14 years ago.

Colombian Cathedral Hewn Out of Mountain of Salt

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Thousands of Colombians attend Mass in one of the most unusual churches in the world—a cathedral hewn out of a mountain of salt.

This salt cathedral is located about 30 miles from Bogota at Zipaquirá. It measures about 1½ times the length of a football field. Its arches soar 74 feet. It holds 8,300 persons and it takes a circle of 20 persons to encompass each of its six mammoth pillars.

The area where the cathedral is located has the richest sodium chloride deposits in the continent. About 125,000 sacks of salt are mined monthly, and geologists claim the deposits won't be worked out for thousands of years. The experts say the mountain of salt was formed by a deposit of ocean water. Marine fossils are found in the mine.

Work on the cathedral was started in 1950 and was completed four years later.

The mine has four levels. The cathedral was built on the second level. Builders had to blast out the two-story church.

The cathedral consists of four naves. The principal one terminates at the high altar behind which there is a depiction of Calvary with an enormous 27-foot wood cross towering over the altar.

The right nave leads to a chapel of the Virgin.

Another ends in a baptistry. A subterranean spring feeds the front.

The fourth nave leads to a grotto depicting the birth of Christ. The church has indirect lighting. The central nave can hold 2,000 persons.

Stock Market Heads Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower early this afternoon in moderate trading.

Key stocks declined from fractions to about a point.

It was the sharpest downward move of the week which included one vigorous rally and other days in which profit-taking on the big post-October advance was resisted stubbornly.

Brokers felt that some kind of genuine correction was only normal after the big rise.

Some oils, motors, rails and other recent leaders.

Aerospace issues picked up a bit.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 2 at 251.2 with industrials off 2 rails off .6 and utilities unchanged.

That a boost from 2 to 5 mills in the corporate franchise tax could bring in an additional $25 million.

Present state and local tax systems are "definitely regressive," the report contends because total tax payment goes down as percentage of personal income goes up.

"Taxes in Ohio are 'too low' if the residents of the state prefer to give up in the form of taxes a larger share of their incomes for government to use to provide a higher level of public services . . . on the other hand taxes in Ohio are 'too high' if the citizenry of the state wish to retain a larger share of their income for private disposal and have a lower level of public services," the report says.

37th Division Organization Change Is OK'd

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Authority to reorganize the Ohio National Guard's 37th Infantry Division has been received by Maj. Gen. Loren G. Windom, Ohio Adjutant General who leaves that office Monday but remains as division commander.

Windom had been urging the Pentagon for immediate reorganization rather than wait two years.

The 37th now is a pentomic division with five battle groups. The new organization is the so-called ROAD concept, planned for all U.S. divisions, reserve and regular, to better meet battlefield demands. ROAD stands for Reorganization Objective Army Division.

The new division will consist of a "division base" to include artillery, engineer, medical, reconnaissance, aviation supply and service units; three tactical brigades, six infantry battalions and two armor battalions.

Windom termed the reorganization a "major victory" for the National Guard in its present conflict with the secretary of defense. Under the former Department of Defense plan, reorganization would have been in 1965.

Completion of reorganization, Windom said, is planned prior to summer field training Aug. 4-18 at Camp Grayling, Mich.

Work Continues On Appropriations

Pickaway County's Board of Commissioners were scheduled to meet again today for continued work on the county's appropriations for 1963.

Spokesmen said the Commission hopes to have the appropriations completed by today or tomorrow. However, they probably will not be accepted and placed on the minutes until Monday's regular meeting.

The Board, reorganized Monday, spent most of this week working on the financial aspect of the county government, along with other scheduled business.

Kennedy To Push U.S. Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has decided to assert a more vigorous and determined American leadership in world affairs even at the cost of creating major frictions with U.S. allies, especially in Europe.

The President's determination is clearly disclosed in a discussion he held with newsmen in Palm Beach last week, a partial text of which the White House made public Thursday night. As originally reported, the views could not be attributed directly to Kennedy.

What he said apparently represents the hardening of an attitude which has been developing within the administration for many months.

The fact that he said it, in response to a question, emphasizes his present conviction that the United States can get the results it wants on some important issues only by following what amounts to an independent policy.

Kennedy said he thought that "too often in the past we have defined our leadership as an attempt to be rather well regarded in all these countries."

"The fact is," he said, "you can't possibly carry out any policy without causing major frictions."

He said he thought the United States "ought to be more aware" of the fact that "we are going to incur, at intervals, people's displeasure."

As evidence, Kennedy noted that in dealing with the Congo situation the United States has been following a policy "somewhat" different from that of Great Britain and other countries in giving strong support to the United Nations in its effort to bring about unification of the divided African nation.

When he first expressed his views to newsmen at Palm Beach he was talking "for background." This meant that reporters could report the views but could not say directly that the President had stated them at a background news conference.

As comments now on the record, they constitute probably the strongest assertion of the need for independent U.S. action on some occasions that a president has made since the United States began to build the present system of alliances 14 years ago.

Colombian Cathedral Hewn Out of Mountain of Salt

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Thousands of Colombians attend Mass in one of the most unusual churches in the world—a cathedral hewn out of a mountain of salt.

This salt cathedral is located about 30 miles from Bogota at Zipaquirá. It measures about 1½ times the length of a football field. Its arches soar 74 feet. It holds 8,300 persons and it takes a circle of 20 persons to encompass each of its six mammoth pillars.

The area where the cathedral is located has the richest sodium chloride deposits in the continent. About 125,000 sacks of salt are mined monthly, and geologists claim the deposits won't be worked out for thousands of years. The experts say the mountain of salt was formed by a deposit of ocean water. Marine fossils are found in the mine.

Work on the cathedral was started in 1950 and was completed four years later.

The mine has four levels. The cathedral was built on the second level. Builders had to blast out the two-story church.

The cathedral consists of four naves. The principal one terminates at the high altar behind which there is a depiction of Calvary with an enormous 27-foot wood cross towering over the altar.

The right nave leads to a chapel of the Virgin.

Another ends in a baptistry. A subterranean spring feeds the font.

The fourth nave leads to a grotto depicting the birth of Christ. The church has indirect lighting. The central nave can hold 2,000 persons.

Television To Put Stress On Comedians

NEW YORK (AP) — With a Sid Caesar short special and Bob Hope's delayed Christmas show scheduled for showing during the next seven days, the main television theme, if any, is comedy. Caesar's half-hour show will be seen on ABC Tuesday night (9:30-10 EST). Hope's program, as usual a patchwork of shows performed during his holiday tour entertaining overseas servicemen, will be on NBC Wednesday (9-10 p.m.).

Now that football has been retired, those weekend afternoon sports shows are returning. ABC has "Challenge Golf" bowing in on Saturday (2:30-3:30) with Arnold Palmer and Gary Player playing Jack Nicklaus and Phil Rogers in Los Angeles. On Sunday there's the return of CBS 90-minute "Sports Spectacular" (2:30-4 p.m.).

Sunday night there is an original Roger O. Hinson drama, "Windfall" on NBC's Show of the Week (10-11). Stars are Eddie Albert and Glynis Johns. There is also another repeat of CBS' "Tour of the White House" (4-5 p.m.) for those who missed it before or would like another look. "Ben Casey" (ABC, 10-11) starts a two-part show on Monday night — "A Cardinal Act of Mercy" starring Kim Hunter.

To the north amounts were lighter, but early today precipitation was in the form of snow, sleet and freezing rain at Toledo, Findlay and Mansfield.

Northerly winds will end the rain over the state today, turning the precipitation to snow and snow flurries this afternoon, tonight and Saturday. Maximum temperatures will be registered during the morning over the state, with early temperatures in the 50s in the south-east counties and near 40 in the central counties.

Much colder weather with light snow or snow flurries is expected on the weekend.

Ohio Moonshining Activities Show Increase in City

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Moonshining—the illicit distilling of whisky to avoid paying state and federal taxes — is increasing in Ohio, liquor control officials say. "For every still seized in Ohio, there are at least three stills still operating," says Ivy O. Toler, supervisor of the stills squad and intelligence branch of the state liquor department.

Working with U. S. Treasury Department agents, Toler's men knocked off 65 stills in Ohio in the past year, 69 the year before, and 39 in both 1959 and 1960.

Toler says he agrees with the estimate that, for every seven gallons of liquor produced, at least one is moonshine.

"For years and years, the stills were in Ohio's southern counties," says Toler, who took the state job after retiring as an investigator in the U. S. Treasury Department's Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division in 1959.

"Then, suddenly, they broke out in Cleveland. Now there are more of them in the cities than in the hills. They've spread to Youngstown and elsewhere."

Stills often are set up in attics of old homes or in warehouses and the like in Ohio cities, says Toler, who spent many of his 37 years of federal service tracking down moonshiners in Ohio.

Federal and state enforcement officials have their problems both in the cities and the brush. While an attic still in a city may smell up the neighborhood for blocks, the odor sometimes is less apparent close up because it is originating from a height.

In the brush, agents have to cope with snakes, foul weather and nervously vigilant moonshiners who skedaddle at the sight of a strange automobile or unusual sounds in the underbrush.

Moonshiners run risks besides arrest, Toler says—explosion, rivalry with other illegal distillers which can lead to bloodshed, and disability or death from using their own product.

On the latter score, J. D. Scanlan and Toler are in complete agreement, as they are in most other aspects of the battle against illegal distilling.

Scanlan is assistant supervisor in charge of enforcement in the U. S. Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division's Cincinnati office. He and Toler work together so closely that Ivan W. Smith, deputy state liquor director in charge of enforcement, says:

"Except on payday, when they draw their checks from separate agencies, you wouldn't know they're from separate authorities."

Both Scanlan and Toler say that the frequently unsanitary conditions under which moonshine is produced, lye and paint thinner and other things used to hasten fermentation or stretch out the supply, and lead salts often picked up from the still, all are distinct threats to anyone drinking the stuff.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Birdie told me.

Increasingly over the years many stories have sounded as if a birdie told reporters what President Kennedy or Eisenhower or some official had on his mind.

These stories come out of so-called background conferences, with a president or official, where the rule is laid down beforehand that the one doing the talking must not be identified by direct quotes.

The least an unsuspecting reader can conclude, from two columns on a personally conducted tour of the presidential mind, is that the President must have some awfully gabby friends.

The trouble with them is that the birdie sometimes lays an egg: someone not present at the conference and therefore not bound by the rules finds out for a fact the President did the talking and says so in print.

Thus all the time and care that went into arranging the background and concealing the presidential identity goes out the window. It happened to Eisenhower. Now it has happened to Kennedy.

In 1959 Eisenhower had a series of White House background dinners for a select group of newsmen who went out and wrote what he said he thought without saying he said it.

Then at a public news conference one reporter, not at the dinners, asked Eisenhower bluntly if he wasn't the one who had done the talking. He admitted he was.

Twice in a row—at the end of 1961 and the end of 1962—Kennedy held similar backgrounders at Palm Beach. And both times the reporters present wrote stories on what he thought without saying he told them.

Both times other newsmen, not in on the backgrounders, followed up by saying Kennedy was the "high authority" and the "informed source" who had talked to reporters.

Kennedy seems burned up this time at the disclosure. On Thursday his press secretary, Pierre Salinger, said Kennedy may cut out these New Year's sessions with the press.

The background, with a president or anyone else, has never been a happy arrangement before.

The trouble with them is that the birdie sometimes lays an egg: someone not present at the conference and therefore not bound by the rules finds out for a fact the President did the talking and says so in print.

Thus all the time and care that went into arranging the background and concealing the presidential identity goes out the window. It happened to Eisenhower. Now it has happened to Kennedy.

In 1959 Eisenhower had a series of White House background dinners for a select group of newsmen who went out and wrote what he said he thought without saying he said it.

Then at a public news conference one reporter, not at the dinners, asked Eisenhower bluntly if he wasn't the one who had done the talking. He admitted he was.

And he said he wasn't sure these background dinners were a good practice. But he continued them.

Twice in a row—at the end of 1961 and the end of 1962—Kennedy held similar backgrounders at Palm Beach. And both times the cause, basically, there is concealment from the public in the very process of trying to inform the public.

Nevertheless, reporters take part in them, if this is the only way to get information, because it's their job to get news. The theory here seems to be that some information is better than none.

But it's a system which feeds on itself. There are more and more background conferences, not only with Kennedy but with various officials below the White House level.

For example: Secretary of State Dean Rusk. He has held only 17 news conferences in two years. The last was Dec. 10. The one before was last July 12.

Yet, in those two years he has held many background conferences, here and abroad, with newsmen, particularly the kind that goes the background one better. This is the "deep" background.

A real danger in a background is that a member of the administration, any administration, can try to influence public opinion without taking public responsibility for what he says.

Ohio Library Foundation Gets Charter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Library Foundation, Columbus, obtained a non-profit corporation charter today from Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

Walter Brahm, statutory agent for the foundation, said major library groups, representing public, college, school and special libraries, have agreed to participate in management of the new organization.

He said the foundation seeks to provide assistance for all types of libraries. That, he said, would include help for advancing library service for experimentation on research for buildings, scholarships and other related needs for which public funds ordinarily cannot be used.

Brahm expressed belief that the foundation could gain enough private backing to become a multi-million-dollar organization.

Trustees of the new foundation are George W. Coen, Lancaster; dEdward Saviers, Stowe, and Lew C. Naylor, Lakewood.

Autopsy Report Eyed In Fatal Norwood Fight

Ex-Ohio Policeman Faces California Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A former Mentor, Ohio, policeman, accused of killing his girl friend after continued arguments about whether he loved her, faces Superior Court arraignment on a murder charge next Thursday.

Sheriff's deputies said Albert Llewellyn, 40, shot himself after killing Angelina King, 37, early last month. Llewellyn was hospitalized briefly, then jailed.

"Except on payday, when they draw their checks from separate agencies, you wouldn't know they're from separate authorities."

Both Scanlan and Toler say that the frequently unsanitary conditions under which moonshine is produced, lye and paint thinner and other things used to hasten fermentation or stretch out the supply, and lead salts often picked up from the still, all are distinct threats to anyone drinking the stuff.

Martin, accused of passing at least three bad checks here, is wanted on similar charges in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana, Newland said. Martin is being held without bond pending grand jury action.

Mrs. Deal asked Mrs. Bastian, music and arts chairman, to arrange for interested club members to begin practicing as a group in the near future.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Alfred Axe, program chairman, introduced Rolland Featheringham who conducted a "White Elephant Sale" for the club. This produced $29.45 for the treasury. Each member brought one or more "white elephants" to be auctioned off to another member.

Ohio Moonshining Activities Show Increase in City

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Moonshining—the illicit distilling of whisky to avoid paying state and federal taxes — is increasing in Ohio, liquor control officials say.

"For every still seized in Ohio, there are at least three stills operating," says Ivy O. Toler, supervisor of the stills squad and intelligence branch of the state liquor department.

Working with U. S. Treasury Department agents, Toler's men knocked off 65 stills in Ohio in the past year, 69 the year before, and 39 in both 1959 and 1960.

Toler says he agrees with the estimate that, for every seven gallons of liquor produced, at least one is moonshine.

"For years and years, the stills were in Ohio's southern counties," says Toler, who took the state job after retiring as an investigator in the U. S. Treasury Department's Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division in 1959.

"Then, suddenly, they broke out in Cleveland. Now there are more of them in the cities than in the hills. They've spread to Youngstown and elsewhere."

Stills often are set up in attics of old homes or in warehouses and the like in Ohio cities, says Toler, who spent many of his 37 years of federal service tracking down moonshiners in Ohio.

Federal and state enforcement officials have their problems both in the cities and the brush. While an attic still in a city may smell up the neighborhood for blocks, the odor sometimes is less apparent close up because it is originating from a height.

In the brush, agents have to cope with snakes, foul weather and nervously vigilant moonshiners who skedaddle at the sight of a strange automobile or unusual sounds in the underbrush.

Moonshiners run risks besides arrest, Toler says—explosion, rivalry with other illegal distillers which can lead to bloodshed, and disability or death from using their own product.

On the latter score, J. D. Scanlan and Toler are in complete agreement, as they are in most other aspects of the battle against illegal distilling.

Scanlan is assistant supervisor in charge of enforcement in the U. S. Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division's Cincinnati office. He and Toler work together so closely that Ivan W. Smith, deputy state liquor director in charge of enforcement, says:

"Except on payday, when they draw their checks from separate agencies, you wouldn't know they're from separate authorities."

Both Scanlan and Toler say that the frequently unsanitary conditions under which moonshine is produced, lye and paint thinner and other things used to hasten fermentation or stretch out the supply, and lead salts often picked up from the still, all are distinct threats to anyone drinking the stuff.

With mash, sugar, ground-up corn, water, his still and a fire, the moonshiner can produce 5 to 5½ gallons of 90-proof moonshine for $3 to $4, Toler says. The transporter—a specialist who has a delivery route and usually an automobile with booster springs—pays $5 to $6 a gallon and sells it for $10.

The dealer who buys it for $10 then "pints it out" and gets $16 to $20 a gallon.

Why do those who buy the pints go to all this trouble and risk when it probably would be just as easy to go to a state monopoly store?

"It's hard to say," Toler remarks. "A certain class of people gets a kick out of violating the law. And some say it's hotter than ordinary whisky, that it burns more when you swallow it, and that it makes you sicker if you get sick, so they figure it must be stronger."

Generally, both state and federal enforcement officials like to bring a moonshining case into federal court, because federal law makes it a felony, with a stiffer sentence and fine than the state's misdemeanor provisions.

"We've had very good success in court," Scanlan says. "Of course we try to go in very well prepared. The courts have backed us up."

Officials say it's difficult to estimate what moonshining in Ohio costs in lost revenue, except that it's more than $10 per gallon to the federal government, and about $3—plus state monopoly profit—to Ohio.

But enforcement chief Smith adds that "this small crew (Toler presently has a man in Portsmouth, one in Youngstown and two in Cleveland) undoubtedly saves the state much more in taxes than the cost of running the entire enforcement division."

Ohioan Held for Forgery By Kentucky Police

RICHMOND, Ky. (AP)—Police Chief Carl T. Newland says a man jailed here on forgery charges, Troy Martin, about 40, apparently is from Ohio, but that he doesn't know from what city.

Martin, accused of passing at least three bad checks here, is wanted on similar charges in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana, Newland said. Martin is being held without bond pending grand jury action.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Birdie told me.

Increasingly over the years many stories have sounded as if a birdie told reporters what President Kennedy or Eisenhower or some official had on his mind.

These stories come out of so-called background conferences, with a president or official, where the rule is laid down beforehand that the one doing the talking must not be identified by direct quotes.

The least an unsuspecting reader can conclude, from two columns on a personally conducted tour of the presidential mind, is that the President must have some awfully glibby friends.

The trouble with them is that the birdie sometimes lays an egg; someone not present at the conference and therefore not bound by the rules finds out for a fact the President did the talking and says so in print.

Thus all the time and care that went into arranging the background and concealing the presidential identity goes out the window. It happened to Eisenhower. Now it has happened to Kennedy.

In 1959 Eisenhower had a series of White House background dinners for a select group of newsmen who went out and wrote what he said he thought without saying he said it.

Then at a public news conference one reporter, not at the dinners, asked Eisenhower bluntly if he wasn't the one who had done the talking. He admitted he was.

And he said he wasn't sure these background dinners were a good practice. But he continued them.

Twice in a row—at the end of 1961 and the end of 1962—Kennedy held similar backgrounders at Palm Beach. And both times the reporters present wrote stories on what he thought without saying he told them.

Both times other newsmen, not in on the backgrounders, followed up by saying Kennedy was the "high authority" and the "informed source" who had talked to reporters.

Kennedy seems burned up this time at the disclosure. On Thursday his press secretary, Pierre Salinger, said Kennedy may cut out these New Year's sessions with the press.

The background, with a president or anyone else, has never been a happy arrangement between the press and the White House.

For example: Secretary of State Dean Rusk. He has held only 17 news conferences in two years. The last was Dec. 10. The one before was last July 12.

Yet, in those two years he has held many background conferences, here and abroad, with newsmen, particularly the kind that goes the background one better. This is the "deep" background.

A real danger in a backgrounder is that a member of the administration, any administration, can try to influence public opinion without taking public responsibility for what he says.

He said the foundation seeks to provide assistance for all types of libraries. That, he said, would include help for advancing library service for experimentation in research for buildings, scholarships and other related needs for which public funds ordinarily cannot be used.

Brahm expressed belief that the foundation could gain enough private backing to become a multi-million-dollar organization.

Nevertheless, reporters take part in them, if this is the only way to get information, because it's their job to get news. The theory here seems to be that some information is better than none.

But it's a system which feeds on itself. There are more and more background conferences, not only with Kennedy but with various officials below the White House level.

For example: Secretary of State Dean Rusk. He has held only 17 news conferences in two years. The last was Dec. 10. The one before was last July 12.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Library Foundation, Columbus, obtained a non-profit corporation charter today from Secretary of State Ted W. Brown.

Britain May Not Join

Capitals from Washington to Tehran have been watching with more than passive interest the intricate negotiations of Britain to join the European Economic Community, but little consideration has been given the possibility that Britain might never become a full-fledged member of the alliance.

It has been assumed by most observers that the obstacle to British entry was largely a desire by France and West Germany to remain dominant partners in the Common Market, but that eventual British partnership was assured.

A second look at the situation is now being taken by a number of interested parties, including London, with the appearance on the horizon of the remote, but possible, rejection by Britain of the terms relating to agricultural trade and commonwealth ties now demanded by President de Gaulle and Chancellor Audeaenauer.

Acceptance of these terms would bring major economic changes in Britain. It would be forced to divorce itself of all economic concessions to the commonwealth, except those which would coincide with the overall policies of the Common Market. Britain, which now has the lowest food prices in Europe, would be compelled to adjust them to the level of the community, thereby creating hardships for both farmers and consumers.

Either of these obstacles would be difficult for Britain to overcome, but together they have formed a stalemate to the tedious talks which have been continuing for more than a year.

The Common Market's firm insistence on its terms for British entry shows no signs of weakening, and has caused the first appearance of pessimism in the London press. Many observers are now convinced that unless the stalemate can be broken within the next several months, Britain will be forced by domestic sentiment to withdraw its application and search for new avenues of negotiation in world trade.

Some of the alternatives, including further devaluation of the pound sterling, not only would have a serious effect on world currencies — including the dollar — but would have dubious value in solving Britain's trade problems produced by the growing European alliance.

Vocational Training

A phenomenon of modern American society is the wide disparity between the number of skilled jobs available and the number of skilled workers to take them. This is one educational "gap" that is very real.

Every employer knows of it. He has constant difficulty in finding employees trained in the many skills that keep the U. S. economy — and particularly his business — going. Auto mechanics, machinists, cooks, electronics experts, computer operators, etc., are in short supply.

Many skilled workers earn more than their neighbors who have college degrees. Unfortunately, another need must be met before the young people will flock into training sessions in the numbers needed. It is a change in attitude toward skilled work.

Thousands of youngsters now in school do not have the combination of academic abilities and desire for knowledge that is required for a college program. Yet they are being sent through courses preparing them for college because a college degree is considered the key to so many of life's rewards.

Somehow the real story — the fact that skilled work is often more rewarding in material terms and in personal satisfaction — needs to be told to boys and girls entering high school. They still must be free to choose their own paths, but emphasis on college can be overdone.

Not only will this help cut into the shortage of skilled workers, but it will assist many boys and girls in finding useful and rewarding places in industry and business.

Fabulous Concert

On the day after Christmas a remarkable event took place in Carnegie Hall in New York City. There appeared on the stage four of the greatest living violinists: Nathan Milstein, Isaac Stern, Zino Francescatti and Erica Morini.

This tremendous assemblage of fiddling talent was in tribute to Fritz Kreisler who died last Jan. 29. The proceeds of the concert went to one of Kreisler's favorite charities, the Musicians Emergency Fund.

Imagine it — four virtuosos without superiors anywhere in the world. And, if not impressed by the names of the violinists, the listeners could marvel at the instruments they played: Stern's Guarnerius and the others' Stradivarius violins. In addition, the Julliard String Quartet, which opened the concert, used a Stradivarius, a Guarnerius, a Guadagnini and an Amati. The violins were worth more than a quarter of a million dollars.

It was a once-in-a-lifetime concert. Music lovers can only hope that a recording was made of it.

NEW YORK (AP) — Add to the list of business barometers: Boating. And as a preview to the official summing up of the state of the union, makers of pleasure craft are offering their own findings.

They say sales are picking up after a dip awhile back, and the reason is that people feel they'll be still more prosperous and have more leisure time in 1963.

The American market apparently looks good to foreign competitors, too. This year at the 53rd National Motor Boat Show in New York, 40 foreign boats are on exhibit from five countries, Denmark, France, Britain, West Germany and Canada. That's still only a token, out of the some 500 boats by about 125 exhibitors.

A spokesman for F. Perkins Ltd., of Britain, says that for the first time they've felt the market here justified showing their outboard motors in competition with such American producers as Johnson, Evinrude and Mercury. William C. He feels a leveling off in the growth of these two essentials largely accounted for slowed sales in 1960 and 1961.

Britain May Not Join

Capitals from Washington to Tehran have been watching with more than passive interest the intricate negotiations of Britain to join the European Economic Community, but little consideration has been given the possibility that Britain might never become a full-fledged member of the alliance.

It has been assumed by most observers that the obstacle to British entry was largely a desire by France and West Germany to remain dominant partners in the Common Market, but that eventual British partnership was assured.

A second look at the situation is now being taken by a number of interested parties, including London, with the appearance on the horizon of the remote, but possible, rejection by Britain of the terms relating to agricultural trade and commonwealth ties now demanded by President de Gaulle and Chancellor Audeaenauer.

Acceptance of these terms would bring major economic changes in Britain. It would be forced to divorce itself of all economic concessions to the commonwealth, except those which would coincide with the overall policies of the Common Market. Britain, which now has the lowest food prices in Europe, would be compelled to adjust them to the level of the community, thereby creating hardships for both farmers and consumers.

Either of these obstacles would be difficult for Britain to overcome, but together they have formed a stalemate to the tedious talks which have been continuing for more than a year.

gains along these lines in 1963 should mean a good year for boating," he insists.

Figures on the industry sometimes are challenged and are hard to verify. But the estimates of the National Association of Engine & Boat Manufacturers, which is putting on the show opening to the public Saturday, and of the Outboard Boating Club of America, put retail spending on boating in 1962 at $2.5 billion, just under a record and up $1.6 million from 1961.

They say that 37,340,000 Americans participate in pleasure boating, some only as youthful passengers. And they report boats in use last year totaling 7,468,000, with outboards accounting for 4,085,000 of that, inboards 795,000, sailboats 483, and the remainder being rowboats, canoes and such.

Peak of prosperity of Ohio's potteries was in the second half of the 19th century when East Liverpool alone counted 23 potteries firing a total of 67 kilns, says The Ohio Historical Society.

RIVALRY BETWEEN those two fine old Ivy League colleges, Yale and Princeton, now extends far beyond the confines of the football gridiron. Just how far I discovered when I journeyed up to lecture at Yale recently.

The very next night Old Eli's debating team was scheduled to meet Princeton head-on. I've never discovered who won. But Yale emerged victorious in two previous debates with the same Princeton team by defending the affirmative in "Resolved: That a College Education Is Wasted on the American Female" and "Resolved: That Harvard Should Confer An Honorary Degree on Brigitte Bardot!"

An author who had submitted a 900-page novel to Editor Hiram Haydn at Atheneum explained, "Often I walked alone late at night to the very end of a Hudson River pier to collect my thoughts."

"Wonderful," nodded Haydn thoughtfully, "but I wonder if you went far enough."

Observes Robert Nathan in his spritely volume, "The Married Man":

"Whoever—or whatever—was responsible for the extermination of the woolly mammoth, the rose, and the mastodon (Being dissatisfied and/or derisive)—You can be sure that when Man is finally made to disappear from this earth it will be faster done—And more decisive."

EDITOR'S NOTE — This article was written prior to Dr. Fern's death on January 1. The author was stricken with polio in 1955, but overcame this handicap to become a health columnist for King Features Syndicate. He was 37.

By BURTON H. FERN, M. D.
What is shingles? Does it really kill when it spirals around both sides and meets in front?

Shingles (herpes zoster) is a virus infection like polio. Polio attacks muscle — stimulating nerve cells; shingles infects pain-carrying nerves.

Shingles and chickenpox viruses are cut from the same mold. Experts can't tell them apart. Both ailments are probably caused by the same germ.

First, you catch chickenpox. If you had chickenpox years before — and your immunity is wearing thin — you come down with shingles. Older men are especially vulnerable.

You may have caught the virus months or years before. It often lurks undetected until leukemia, TB or something else lowers resistance.

Shingles begins like a mild flu. It leaves you weak and woozy, shaking and shivering with fever. Your stomach rumbles uneasily and may erupt.

Pain spreads around to the front along every branch of the infected nerve. Then a warm flush breaks out, followed by crops of blisters that overhang each other like shingles on a house.

Without treatment, the blisters soon dry up and scale off, leaving you immune. Cortisone medicines melt the in-

Did GI Ever Find His Peace?

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the frustrations of war reporting is that often you never learn the end of a story—how things finally come out for individuals you meet.

An incident I have in mind is the strange case of a soldier whose arm felt guilty.

It happened 20 years ago this month. I was quartered with several other correspondents—in those days we hitchhiked about the battlefronts—in an abandoned French home in a small town in Tunisia in North Africa.

One morning I went to an American field hospital in the town. The sky was bright, the day was clear, and the war seemed far away. It did, that is, until I entered the hospital and saw the souvenirs war always leaves—men wearing white bandages stained red.

I talked to a doctor briefly about the wounded. He pointed to a bed in the corner and said, "He's our most interesting patient at the moment."

The bed held a thin young dazed-eyed Jewish private. He had a sensitive face, and looked more like a student violinist than a soldier. He wore no bandage that I could see, but there was an air of immeasurable listlessness about him.

After a short chat, he began to tell me his story. As I recall it now, he had been on a patrol, and the patrol was surprised by Nazi troops.

The other members of the American patrol scattered or were killed in hand to hand combat.

Suddenly the young Jewish soldier found himself alone facing two of the enemy closing in on him fast. You hear a lot about bayonet fighting in war. Actually it is extremely rare. Probably less than one frontline soldier in a thousand ever employs a bayonet for its designed purpose.

This young soldier, who had never met an enemy before, had no time to aim and fire.

Instinctively, he lunged forward with his bayonet and killed one of the Nazis instantly.

He whirled. The second Nazi was about to fire. The young soldier thrust the bayonet forward again with all his might. He felt it go to the hilt through soft flesh.

"I'll never forget his face," said the young American. "His gun dropped from his hand, and he looked surprised, as if he couldn't believe this had happened to him. When I pulled out the bayonet, he fell to the ground. And he lay there in the mud, crying in German for his mother, until he died."

The re-living of his ordeal had excited the young soldier. He lay back on his bed, exhausted.

"Were you wounded?" I asked. "No, I'm all right," he replied listlessly. "It's just my arm. My right arm. It won't work."

Puzzled, I went back to the doctor.

"The boy is suffering from hysterical paralysis," he explained. "He had a strong religious upbringing, and he has violated one of his creed's strongest injunctions—'Thou shalt not kill.'"

"Logically, he realizes he had to inflict death in self-defense, but his mind merely has transferred the blame to his right arm. His arm is literally paralyzed with a feeling of guilt."

Well, the war moved on, I never saw or heard of the young Jewish soldier again.

But for 20 years I have wondered: Did he finally make peace with himself? Did his arm ever forgive itself for taking two enemy lives in order to save his own?

Kennedy and Domestic Scene

By John Chamberlain

As we move into 1963 a White House spokesman — or "highest authority" — indicates that President John F. Kennedy has reflected profitably on the substance of two years' experience in dealing with Khrushchev. But the President, in facing a new Congress, has yet to prove that he is as quick to recognize domestic realities as he is to move with the necessities imposed by the Cold War.

The reason for the split in Kennedy's sense of realism is rooted in an odd paradox deriving from his basic commitments. When he moves outwardly from his deepest convictions, as he has been doing recently in his conduct of foreign affairs, he finds his way to an intelligent opportunism. But when he tries to be pragmatic on the basis of something that he does not feel strongly about, his awareness falters. Hence we witness a man who is least successful as an opportunist where he tries his hardest to be opportunistic.

Since I do not know J.F.K. personally, I offer this analysis somewhat tentatively. However, I once interviewed a number of people who were close to the Kennedys for a series I was writing on Presidential candidates, and my impressions as of 1960 have not been altered by events.

My feeling then was that John F. Kennedy was a young man fervently committed to steering his country to a safe haven through the perils of the early atomic age. He would do what it takes at the waters' edge to confound the plans of foreign dictators. This commitment, hard and true, led him eventually to take the right stand in the Cuban situation in spite of misleading advice from the "softs."

When it comes to domestic questions, however, I have never had any feeling that the President has hard and fast convictions. He lacks the instincts and the attitudes of the zealous and frequently self-righteous reformers of the Nineteen Thirties, who wanted to lift Jane Addams's humanitarian Hull House right out of its Chicago slum and plant it down in Washington as a new wing to the White House. Kennedy was never really close to what Eleanor Roosevelt represented in the Democratic Party, which was one reason for one reason for Mrs. Roosevelt's original coolness toward his candidacy.

But if Kennedy came along too late in the day to reflect the emotional attitudes of the Harry Hopkins generation, he derives from a tradition of municipal politics which has always known how to give a quid (a Christmas turkey, a New Year's Day scuffle of coal) for a quo (a vote on election day).

Like any successful politician he knows he must have a power base if he is to maintain himself in office long enough to carry out some of the things he really feels strongly about. And in seeking to preserve his power base, he begins with the elements that made the Democratic Party of Franklin D. Roosevelt so successful.

The traditional Democratic power blocs include the big labor unions, the local followings of the old time city bosses, the less successful — or the less fortunate — farmers, and the eggheads who believe that reform should be imposed from bureaus located on the Potomac. Directing all these horses in tandem, Franklin Roosevelt won four elections. In winning, he kept the Democratic South in his pocket despite his attitude toward old-line Southerners such as the late Senator Walter George of Georgia.

As a party leader who must look to the nature of his power base, Kennedy is still going through the motions of holding the Roosevelt coalition together. He pleases the centralizing humanitarians by his insistence on Medicare and Federal Aid to Education. He tries not to alienate Walter Reuther of the C.I.O. He makes the familiar gestures to ethnic groups, and he seeks to underwrite the agricultural price structure at a high level. The question is, however, whether he has ever made the intel-tual effort to comprehend the basic realignments of power groups in the affluent Nineteen Fifties and Sixties. Since Roosevelt's heyday a whole new middle class has come into being. That middle class can pay for its own medical insurance. It can finance its own local schools. Its paychecks have been coming in regularly, and it is sick of legislation that takes bigger and bigger cuts from weekly income. It does not mind a Social Security floor for old people, but it has no hankering to pay the inflationary bill that will be presented if that floor continues to grate upward toward the ceiling.

So it is a question whether the country, on balance, wants the Presidents' proposed domestic legislation. Will a Kennedy who is keen about refurbishing the source of his power take the hint before 1964?

ICE FOLLIES SKATERS — Kathy Friedheim and Diane Tylla show top form in costumes for an Ice Follies production number.

Ice Follies Skaters Are In Top Form

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

It happens every year! Those glamorous good skaters, the Ice Follies, glide out on the ice and every girl in the audience thinks, "It looks so easy! I ought to take up skating."

Easy it looks, but easy it isn't. It takes skill to skate and it takes more than that to be a member of the justly famed skating chorus of the most colorful revue of the m. all, the Shipstads & Johnson Ice Follies.

The spectacular show is ever on the lookout for new talent. As it criss-crosses the nation, tryouts are held in every city it plays.

Blond Patty Hall, once an Ice Follies herself, is now in charge of the skating chorus.

What is she looking for when she interviews new talent? "Everything counts," said Patty "how strong a skater she is, her height, weight and appearance, what her personal background and character are like."

If she's lucky enough to get a spot in the skating line, a girl can't glide along on her honors. She really has to work. It's constant rehearsing and strict adherence to a series of rules that apply to skating chorus and stars alike.

Several of the rules offer beauty advice as useful to civilians as it is to skaters.

For example, the girls aren't allowed to wear slacks to and from rehearsals.

"We want them to look attractive at all times," explains Patty. "People judge them by their appearance."

It's a sage bit of advice; one to mull over before you head for the supermarket in a sad-sack outfit.

Periodic weigh-ins are also mandatory for skaters, and should be for everyone else, too, especially those with a tendency to pile on pounds.

The figures of the Follies are carefully watched, because the show can't afford to have them grow out of their fabulous and costly costumes.

It makes sense, for who can afford to keep an ever-expanding figure in clothes?

If you watch weight carefully and diet as soon as an extra pound appears, your clothes should

The girls also have to follow some wardrobe rules.

They must personally put away costumes and hats. This is to insure the fact that clothes will always be ready to wear when needed.

Skates and laces must also be kept spotlessly clean. This is a little detail but, like crooked stocking seams or smudgy shoes, it can detract from a perfect appearance.

Needless to say, the skaters follow the rules to the letter and it's evident. Their good grooming adds to their glamour and makes the Ice Follies the most famous travelling skating show of them all!

Dear Abby: by Abigail Van Buren Don't Count Your Chickens

DEAR ABBY: If I buy one of those Senior Citizens Homes for retired old folks and the woman who has been my darling wife for 44 years drops dead on the golf course because she's not used to all that exercise, and then I marry a cute young chick and we have two or three kiddies, what should I do? They don't allow children at the Senior Citizens Homes for retired folks.

LOOKING AHEAD
DEAR LOOKING: Don't count your chickens before they're hatched. I'll help you solve that problem when the times comes.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and my problem has to do with my mother. I have an older sister and a younger brother. My mother favors my sister because she's the oldest, and she favors my brother because he is the youngest. That leaves me in the middle. I have really tried hard to be nice to my mother but it never turns out right. We just don't seem to get along. What can I do?

MIDDLE CHILD
DEAR MIDDLE CHILD: No matter what position you play in the family game, you see only the drawbacks. The oldest complains that when a fight occurs, it's her fault because she should have known better. The youngest complains because he has to go to bed earlier and can't do what the older kids can do. Frankly, I think you have got the best spot. Just try harder.

DEAR ABBY: My husband flipped his lid because I was up ironing at two o'clock in the morning. I like to do my work at night when the children are not under foot and as long as it gets done I don't see why he should care when I do it. He said if I didn't watch TV all day I'd get my work done in the daytime. So now he takes a tube out of the set before he goes to work. Abby, I have eight children under 12 and no help, and watching TV during the day (and I don't watch "all day") is my only relaxation. Do you think he's being fair?

PUNISHED
DEAR PUNISHED: Your husband is behaving like a tyrant.

First Lady's Dress Designer Does Twist, Shows Creations

NEW YORK (AP)—Oleg Cassini, Mrs. John F. Kennedy's dress designer, did the twist, the Russian Cossack dance, acted out tips on keeping one's weight down, and incidentally introduced his spring collection.

He made few references to his best-known customer except to pat himself on the back, partly in jest, because the First Lady continues to appear at the top of the world's best-dressed list.

"I've been accused of capitalizing on my recent glory," said Cassini, whose name has become associated with luggage and nail polish among other things since his appointment as Jacqueline Kennedy's couturier.

"Well, I've got just about the same amount of money I had 10 years ago but I like to expand into other design areas."

"The time has come to get clothes a little closer to the body. Not too close though. Remember the time I introduced the sausage look?" he roared the occasionally self-effacing designer as unsmiling models traversed the runway. White knit variations with nautical seasoning and a tasteful collection of bosomy sheaths were his idea of the little-bit-closer look.

"With this dress the front is very tight in the balcony, the rest is degage," he said, as a girl in a fitted bodice turned around to exhibit a loose-fitting back-buttoned overblouse effect.

Necklines occasionally plunged daringly in front.

Despite a long and impressive parade of elegant costumes, Cassini was a design hero for his rain clothes. Italian silk print water-shedding fabrics had been cut into sleek and unrainlike coats, suits and coat and dress combinations. Only hint of their stormy purposes were the cloud patterns on the materials.

Dear Abby: Don't Count Your Chickens

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: If I buy one of those Senior Citizens Homes for retired old folks and the woman who has been my darling wife for 44 years drops dead on the golf course because she's not used to all that exercise, and then I marry a cute young chick and we have two or three kiddies, what should I do? They don't allow children at the Senior Citizens Homes for retired folks.

LOOKING AHEAD

DEAR ABBY: Don't count your chickens before they're hatched. I'll help you solve that problem when the times comes.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and my problem has to do with my mother. I have an older sister and a younger brother. My mother favors my sister because she's the oldest, and she favors my mother because he is the youngest. That leaves me in the middle. I have really tried hard to be nice to my mother but it never turns out right. We just don't seem to get along. What can I do?

MIDDLE CHILD

DEAR MIDDLE CHILD: No matter what position you play in the family game, you see only the drawbacks. The oldest complains that, when a fight occurs, it's her fault because she should have known better. The youngest complains because he has to go to bed earlier and can't do what the older kids can do. Frankly, I think you have got the best spot. Just try harder.

DEAR ABBY: My husband flipped his lid because I was up ironing at two o'clock in the morning. I like to do my work at night when the children are not under foot and as long as it gets done I don't see why he should care when I do it. He said if I didn't watch TV all day I'd get my work done in the daytime. So now he takes a tube out of the set before he goes to work. Abby, I have eight children under 12 and no help, and watching TV during the day (and I don't watch "all day") is my only relaxation. Do you think he's being fair?

PUNISHED

DEAR PUNISHED: Your husband is behaving like a tyrant.

With eight children under 12 and no help, any relaxation you can grab during the day is well earned. Tell him to take care of HIS job and you'll take care of yours.

DEAR ABBY: I work out because I have to support myself and my little pre-school daughter. I have a friend who offered to look after my child in her home during my working hours, which are noon until six. Nothing was said about money because she offered, saying it was no trouble and that my little girl would be good company for her little boy who's the same age. I later heard that she told someone that I was cheap because I never offered to pay her. I thought friends did things for nothing.

STRANGE FRIENDSHIP

DEAR STRANGE: Friends do. But apparently you put a strain on your friendship by routinely leaving your child with her every day. If she complained behind your back, take the hint and either offer her money or make other arrangements for your child.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Sabin To Be Honored

BETHEL, Ohio (AP) — The Southwest Ohio district of the American Legion plans to give a plaque to Dr. Albert B. Sabin, developer of oral polio vaccine, during its 4th District conference Sunday.

When preparing New England style home baked beans, some cooks like to dice the salt pork (usually called for) and cook it with beans before the other ingredients are added and the beans are given a long baking.

Ever add cooked green lima beans (fresh, frozen or canned) to a cream sauce? Give the dish a cheese topping.

Pimiento strips make a pretty addition to cooked green lima beans and the combination also tastes good.

First Lady's Dress Designer Does Twist, Shows Creations

NEW YORK (AP)—Oleg Cassini, Mrs. John F. Kennedy's dress designer, did the twist, the Russian Cossack dance, acted out tips on keeping one's weight down, and incidentally introduced his spring collection.

He made few references to his best-known customer except to pat himself on the back, partly in jest, because the First Lady continues to appear at the top of the world's best-dressed list.

"I've been accused of capitalizing on my recent glory," said Cassini, whose name has become associated with luggage and nail polish among other things since his appointment as Jacqueline Kennedy's couturier.

"Well, I've got just about the same amount of money I had 10 years ago but I like to expand into other design areas."

"The time has come to get clothes a little closer to the body. Not too close though. Remember the time I introduced the sausage look?" roared the occasionally self-effacing designer as unsmiling models traversed the runway. White knit variations with nautical seasoning and a tasteful collection of bosomy sheaths were his idea of the little-bit-closer look.

"With this dress the front is very tight in the balcony, the rest is degage," he said, as a girl in a fitted bodice turned around to exhibit a loose-fitting back-buttoned overblouse effect.

"Now everything's in the back," Cassini said of design detailing and yet there was more off than on the backs of some of his models.

Necklines occasionally plunged daringly in front.

Despite a long and impressive parade of elegant costumes, Cassini was a design hero for his rain clothes. Italian silk print water-shedding fabrics had been cut into sleek and unrainlike coats, suits and coat and dress combinations. Only hint of their stormy purposes were the cloud patterns on the materials.

Money Offer Rather Sticky

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rankin Harrison is a Cincinnati restaurateur and motel operator who believes in mailing some inducement to customers—money. Harrison is sending out 6,000 letters that begin: "Good morning: It is always nice to invite old and new friends to visit us. Find enclosed a special engraved certificate (guaranteed by the U. S. government)."

The letters have money glued under the message—either $1 or $5 bills.

Harrison said he feels reasonably sure most people who get the money will spend it at his place—because of the glue.

"I have a system to take the bills off again," he says. "It would take a chemist to get them off without damaging them—and a pretty good chemist at that."

In the food field, freeze-drying means first freezing the food, then dehydrating it under a vacuum. If properly sealed, these foods can be stored at room temperatures and will retain their original flavor and texture when prepared.

Local Baha'i Group Lists Weekly Thought

The following is from Baha'i Writings: "The gift of God to this enlightened age is the knowledge of the oneness of mankind and of the fundamental oneness of religion. War shall cease between nations and by the will of God the most great peace shall come; the world will be seen as a new world and all men will live as brothers."

DO YOU NEED DIRECTIONS?

Public libraries today are filled with "how to do it" books. From them we may learn to do almost anything from baking a cake to building a house, from managing a home to conducting a business. But by far the most important are the books which show us how to build our lives.

The greatest among these is the Bible, a book which has withstood the test of centuries. Within it are God's directions for abundant living. But it is not easy to put these directions into practice. We need help.

We turn to the Church. In the Church we find inspiration through the companionship of others who with us strive for a better life. There, in prayer and worship, we know the blessings of God, the Father. We learn to follow the example of the Christ, and feel the power of His Spirit who alone enables us to live the abundant life.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Money Offer Rather Sticky

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rankin Harrison is a Cincinnati restaurateur and motel operator who believes in mailing some inducement to customers—money.

Harrison is sending out 6,000 letters that begin: "Good morning: It is always nice to invite old and new friends to visit us. Find enclosed a special engraved certificate (guaranteed by the U. S. government)."

The letters have money glued under the message—either $1 or $5 bills.

Harrison said he feels reasonably sure most people who get the money will spend it at his place—because of the glue.

"I have a system to take the bills off again," he says. "It would take a chemist to get them off without damaging them—and a pretty good chemist at that."

In the food field, freeze-drying means first freezing the food, then dehydrating it under a vacuum. If properly sealed, these foods can be stored at room temperatures and will regain their original flavor and texture when prepared.

Lists Weekly Thought

The following is from Baha'i Writings: "The gift of God to this enlightened age is the knowledge of the oneness of mankind and of the fundamental oneness of religion. War shall cease between nations and by the will of God the most great peace shall come; the world will be seen as a new world and all men will live as brothers."

Public libraries today are filled with "how to do it" books. From them we may learn to do almost anything from baking a cake to building a house, from managing a home to conducting a business. But by far the most important are the books which show us how to build our lives.

The greatest among these is the Bible, a book which has withstood the test of centuries. Within it are God's directions for abundant living. But it is not easy to put these directions into practice. We need help.

We turn to the Church. In the Church we find inspiration through the companionship of others who with us strive for a better life. There, in prayer and worship, we know the blessings of God, the Father. We learn to follow the example of the Christ, and feel the power of His Spirit who alone enables us to live the abundant life.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Jesus Begins His Work

THE MANIFOLD, SUCCESSFUL AND BENEFICENT
ACTIVITIES OF JESUS' EARLY MINISTRY

Scripture—Mark 1:14-15.

By N. SPEER JONES
THIS WEEK we study Mark's interpretation of Christ's early ministry. This early ministry is also known as "the Galilean ministry." Galilee was one of the three parts of western Palestine, the other two being Samaria and Judea (which included Jerusalem).
Galilee was the most fertile part of Palestine, extending from the Lebanon slopes on the north through the plain of Es-draon on the south. Grapes and olives were major crops, and the numerous villagers also engaged in woolen weaving, dying and fish-curing.
The fertility of the Galilean soil apparently extended to the minds and souls of its people;
they were known to be broad-

GOLDEN TEXT

"The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because He has anointed me to preach good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are oppressed, to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord."—Luke 4:18-19.

much less proud than the self-
satisfied and bigoted Jews around Jerusalem. For this reason, no doubt, it was this section which Christ chose for his early ministry.

A time of about 15 months has intervened between the last verse of last week's lesson (Mark 1:13) and the subsequent verse, which opens today's.
The record of this intervening time
is found mostly in John (1:19-4:42); it includes casual meetings with some of those who were to become Christ's disciples (1:35-42) and isolated miracles, such as occurred at the feast at Cana (2:1-11). His real, active, public ministry, however, may be said to begin with Christ's entry into Galilee, which begins our lesson.

time was an elaboration of that
of John the Baptist, his true
forerunner. John had preached repentance, a turning from the natural state of man. He could not say, as Christ did, "Believe in the gospel," for the gospel of God was made possible for us
only through His Son, Christ,
Who had not yet begun His work.

When Christ did begin His work, his first message was that repentance was important, but not enough; beyond this negative requirement is the positive one that man must also believe
—a word continually used by Christ. Faith is the completion of repentance.

Christ's first actions involved healing — the basis for the church's later position as an establisher of relief institutions.

Chicago Raps Pennsy-NYC Merger Idea

CHICAGO (AP) — The city of Chicago says it doesn't want the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads to merge. But two big shippers are in favor of the proposed merger of the carriers.
In a statement before the Interstate Commerce Commission regional hearing in Chicago Wednesday, J. J. Dahaher, an assistant corporation (city) counsel, said Chicago's opposition is based on the NYC's probable departure from the La Salle Street Station should merger be approved.

This would leave the other terminal partner, the Rock Island Railroad, with the burden of paying full station expenses. Dahaher added that would threaten the Rock Island's ability to maintain its current commuter and interstate service.

The merger system presumably would operate out of the Union Station, which the Pennsylvania now shares with other rail lines.

Backing the proposed linkup were R. L. Sprunger, general rail traffic manager of Central Soya
Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., and Albert
J. Nattick, head of transportation and warehousing for Libby, Mc Neill & Libby, Chicago.

Sprunger said the merger would affect his firm's operations at points in Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Ohio and Pennsylvania. The company shipped or received 78-552 cars last year.

last November.

Not How Much, but How

New Ohio Tax Said Coming Despite Campaign Oratory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"There is little doubt in the minds of most observers that there will be a tax boost."

So says Jesse Shaffer, chief legislative correspondent for the Cincinnati Enquirer, a Republican newspaper, in speaking of the GOP-dominated Ohio General Assembly.

"Some legislators refuse to admit that taxes will be increased,
believing instead the campaign
oratory of last fall," Shaffer continues, adding however that "the choice is not how much tax you want to pay, but how you want to pay it."

Shaffer reports that it appears an increase in taxes will come by the excise tax route, either through raising the present three percent sales tax to four percent
or through a broadened sales tax.
James K. Hunter Jr. of the research division, state Department of Taxation, has worked up some figures on what each of these moves would mean in the way of increased revenue.

The taxation department isn't advocating any of the increases
mentioned but has prepared the figures to answer inquiries.

Estimates show that a straight
one percent increase in the sales tax would bring in about $90 million in additional revenue each

Lowering the sales tax bracket,
making each sale of more than 15 cents subject to the tax, would result in an added take of approximately $6 million.

There are many services which could be made subject to sales tax and the revenue, which could be derived from a services tax,
would depend upon just which of the services were selected.

Expanding the tax to cover personal services, without upping the percentage, would bring in about $10 million.

Tax on business services would amount to $14 to $15 million; automobiles (garage bills, parking, etc.) about $6.8 million; household repair, $4.3 million; amusements, $4.8 million.

A medical service tax, on doctor bills and the like, would return about $16.4 million. A tax on hospital bills would mean another $12 million; lawyer services could account for another $4.3 million; a tax on public transportation services, about $6.6 million, and a three percent surcharge on public utility bills increase state coffers
$31.7 million.

By increasing the tax to four percent and levying on these services, the lawmakers could assure
the state of about $130 million in additional revenue.

Going one step farther by lowering the tax brackets so all purchases over 15 cents would be subject to a one-cent tax—the low limit now in 31 cents—and by adopting the changes in the tax rate base the state could possibly realize as much as $150 million a year.

This is what many people in state government now feel will be needed to meet the costs of expanded educational and welfare needs.

Most lawmakers, however, are committed to an economy program which will result in the shaving of appropriations. Even with this in mind, the legislature could well have to provide $80 to $90 million a year before the current session has ended.

Unless Ohioans are ready to approve a cut in state services, an idea that won't get too far, they can expect to pay more for these services as the cost go up.

Thus, the choice is not how much tax you want to pay, but how you want to pay it.

Romney Given Special Auto Stock Deal

DETROIT (AP)—Gov. George
Romney of Michigan bought 13,494
shares of American Motors stock
for $99,000 less than the market price on the day before he resigned from the auto company
last November.

The bargain purchase, possible
because of previously granted
stock options, boosted Romney's holdings to about 118,000 shares, by far the largest of any individual.

For the 3½ months he served as chairman and president of American Motors before announcing his candidacy for governor, Romney was paid $73,608 in salary
and bonus.

He received $149,211 for the previous full year.

The figures were disclosed today in the proxy statement for the annual shareholders meeting of American Motors, to be held in Detroit Feb. 6.

Romney was elected governor on Nov. 6 and severed all connections with AMC on Nov. 15.

At that time he said he was placing his stock in trust while serving as governor.

Jesus Begins His Work

ACTIVITIES OF JESUS' EARLY MINISTRY

Scripture—Mark 1:14-15.

By N. SPEER JONES
THIS WEEK we study Mark's
interpretation of Christ's early ministry. This early ministry is also known as "the Galilean ministry." Galilee was one of the three parts of western Palestine, the other two being Samaria and Judaea (which included Jerusalem).
Galilee was the most fertile
part of Palestine, extending from the Lebanon slopes on the north through the plain of Israel to the south. Grapes
and olives were major crops, and the numerous villages also engaged in woolen weaving, dying and fish-curing.
The fertility of the Galilean
soil apparently extended to the minds and souls of its people;
they were known to be broad-

GOLDEN TEXT

"The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because He has anointed me to preach good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are oppressed, to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord."—Luke 4:18-19.

much less proud than the self-
satisfied and bigoted Jews
around Jerusalem. For this reason, no doubt, it was this section which Christ chose for his early ministry.

A time of about 15 months
has intervened between the last
verse of last week's lesson (Mark 1:13) and the subsequent verse, which opens today's.
The record of this intervening time
is found mostly in John (1:19-4:42); it included casual meetings with some of those who were to become Christ's disciples (1:35-42) and isolated miracles, such as occurred at the feast at Cana (2:1-11). His real,
active, public ministry, however, may be said to begin with Christ's entry into Galilee, which
begins our lesson.

time was an elaboration of that
of John the Baptist, his true
forerunner. John had preached repentance, a turning from the natural sins of man. He could not say, as Christ did, "Believe in the gospel," for the gospel of God was made possible for us
only through His Son, Christ,
Who had not yet begun His work.

When Christ did begin His work, his first message was that repentance was important, but not enough; beyond this negative requirement, in the positive
one that man must also believe
—a word continually used by Christ. Faith is the completion of repentance.

Christ's first actions involved
healing — the basis for the church's later position as an
establisher of relief institutions.

New Ohio Tax Said Coming Despite Campaign Oratory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"There
is little doubt in the minds of most observers that there will be
a tax boost."

So says Jesse Shaffer, chief legislative correspondent for the Cincinnati Enquirer, a Republican newspaper, in speaking of the GOP-dominated Ohio General Assembly.

"Some legislators refuse to admit that taxes will be increased,
believing instead the campaign
oratory of last fall," Shaffer continues, adding however that "the
choice is not how much tax you want to pay, but how you want to pay it."

Shaffer reports that it appears
an increase in taxes will come by the excise tax route, either
through raising the present three percent sales tax to four percent
or through a broadened sales tax.
James K. Hunter Jr. of the research division, state Department of Taxation, has worked up some figures on what each of these moves would mean in the way of increased revenue.

The taxation department isn't
advocating any of the increases
mentioned but has prepared the
figures to answer inquiries.

Estimates show that a straight
one percent increase in the sales tax would bring in about $90 million in additional revenue each

Lowering the sales tax bracket,
making each sale of more than 15 cents subject to the tax, would result in an added take of approximately $6 million.

There are many services which could be made subject to sales
tax and the revenue, which could be derived from a services tax,
would depend upon just which of the services were selected.

Expanding the tax to cover personal services, without upping the percentage, would bring in about $10 million.

Tax on business services would amount to $14 to $15 million; auto services (garage bills, parking, etc.) about $6.8 million; household repair, $4.3 million; amusements, $4.8 million.

A medical service tax, on doctor bills and the like, would return about $16.4 million. A tax on hospital bills would mean another $12 million; lawyer services could account for another $4.3 million; a tax on public transportation services, about $6.6 million, and a three percent surcharge on public utility bills increase state coffers
$31.7 million.

By increasing the tax to four percent and levying on these services, the lawmakers could assure
the state of about $130 million in additional revenue.

Going one step farther by lowering the tax brackets so all
purchases over 15 cents would be subject to a one-cent tax—the low limit now in 31 cents—and by adopting the changes in the tax rate base the state could possibly realize as much as $150 million a year.

This is what many people in state government now feel will be needed to meet the costs of expanded educational and welfare
needs.
Most lawmakers, however, are committed to an economy program which will result in the shaving of appropriations. Even

with this in mind, the legislature
could well have to provide $80 to $90 million a year before the current session has ended.
Unless Ohioans are ready to ap-

prove a cut in state services, an idea that won't get too far, they can expect to pay more for these services as the cost go up.

Thus, the choice is not how much tax you want to pay, but
how you want to pay it.

Romney Given Special Auto Stock Deal

DETROIT (AP)—Gov. George
Romney of Michigan bought 13,494
shares of American Motors stock
for $99,000 less than the market
price on the day before he resigned from the auto company
last November.

The bargain purchase, possible
because of previously granted
stock options, boosted Romney's
holdings to about 118,000 shares,
by far the largest of any individual.

For the 3½ months he served as chairman and president of American Motors before announcing his candidacy for governor, Romney was paid $73,608 in salary
and bonus.

He received $149,211 for the previous full year.

The figures were disclosed today in the proxy statement for the annual shareholders meeting of
Detroit Feb. 6.

Romney was elected governor on Nov. 6 and severed all connections with AMC on Nov. 15.

At that time he said he was placing his stock in trust while serving as governor.

Factionalism By Democrats Said No Good

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ohio Democrats cannot afford the luxury of factionalism, John Bailey, the party's national chairman, told an audience of 1,650 at a testimonial dinner for Ray T. Miller.

Miller, around whom a considerable portion of factionalism has swirled in the party's political storms of recent years, was honored Thursday night on his 70th birthday and for his 25 years as head of the Democratic organization in Cuyahoga County (Cleveland).

Bailey credited Miller and Gov. Michael V. DiSalle for making Ohio the first state outside New England to support President Kennedy's bid for nomination in 1960.

Bailey said "being a county leader is much more difficult than being a state chairman" because "you are so much closer to the people."

"When you have satisfied them for 25 years, you've done a great job," he said in tribute to Miller.

DiSalle, Cleveland Mayor Ralph S. Locher, and U.S. Sen. Stephen M. Young—all of whom have won elections against Miller's opposition—were among the speakers honoring Miller.

In acknowledging the tributes, Miller told the gathering: "I do know the truth about myself—you are forgiving my many errors."

School Aid Boost Urged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The State Board of Education's legislative proposal to increase state aid to schools by $165 million in the next two years has the support of the Ohio Council for Education.

The council, formed last fall to coordinate the efforts of Ohio's eight major educational organizations, voted to support the proposal Thursday as its first official act.

The recommendations include increasing the foundation program formula by $130 million in the next two years, plus additional appropriations of $5 million for school building rehabilitation and $30 million for school construction in needy districts.

Mrs. Smith Witter of Marion, president of the Ohio PTA, was elected chairman of the council for 1963.

Lausche, Young on Better Terms Now

WASHINGTON (AP)—When Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, was sworn in for his new six-year term, he was escorted to the Senate podium by Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, who four years ago refused to let Lausche perform a similar function.

Does this mean the two, frequently poles apart in philosophy, are on better terms?

"Much better," commented Young. But he emphasized they still frequently disagree politically.

Young is a loyal Kennedy Democrat. Lausche pursues a more independent course.

Estes Turns To Religion

CLEVELAND (AP)—Billie Sol Estes says he used to spend most of his time "worrying about building an empire" but now is happier because "I have time to work for Christ."

The onetime financial wizard said he has not done any wrong intentionally and that he is not worried about his forthcoming federal trial or the possibility of going to jail on a swindling conviction in a Texas court.

Estes, free on $5,000 bond pending appeal of his conviction late last year at Tyler, Tex., appeared Thursday night at the Addison Road Church of Christ.

Estes said he felt his God had justified him, "and that's all that counts with me."

He told a newsmen he is happier than ever before now that he has time "to serve the lord."

Rep. Clarence J. Brown of Blanchester, Ohio's senior Republican in Congress, has been re-elected chairman of the state GOP delegation in an organizational meeting to prepare for the 88th Congress.

Rep. Frances P. Bolton of Cleveland (22 District) was named vice chairman and Rep. William M. McCulloch of Piqua (4th) was elected the state's representative on the National Republican Conference Committee.

Rep. Jackson E. Betts of Findlay (8th) again was named the delegation's whip, and Rep. William H. Harsha of Portsmouth (6th) was elected sergeant-at-arms.

Rep. Charles A. Mosher, Oberlin Republican, from the 13th District, says the House struggle over whether to expand the Rules Committee from 12 to 15 members again in this Congress is a tempet in a teapot.

"More fuss and bother than it really warrants," was Mosher's reaction.

Mosher said the issue "is not as important as many people on both sides claim it to be."

Lausche, Young on Better Terms Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, was sworn in for his new six-year term, he was escorted to the Senate podium by Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, who four years ago refused to let Lausche perform a similar function.

Does this mean the two, frequently poles apart in philosophy, are on better terms?

"Much better," commented Young. But he emphasized they still frequently disagree politically.

Young is a loyal Kennedy Democrat. Lausche pursues a more independent course.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown of Blanchester, Ohio's senior Republican in Congress, has been re-elected chairman of the state GOP delegation in an organizational meeting to prepare for the 88th Congress.

Rep. Frances P. Bolton of Cleveland (22 District) was named vice chairman and Rep. William M. McCulloch of Piqua (4th) was elected the state's representative on the National Republican Conference Committee.

Rep. Jackson E. Betts of Findlay (8th) again was named the delegation's whip, and Rep. William H. Harsha of Portsmouth (6th) was elected sergeant-at-arms.

Rep. Charles A. Mosher, Oberlin Republican, from the 13th District, says the House struggle over whether to expand the Rules Committee from 12 to 15 members again in this Congress is a tempest in a teapot.

"More fuss and bother than it really warrants," was Mosher's reaction.

Mosher said the issue "is not as important as many people on both sides claim it to be."

President Kennedy had said without expansion of the Rules Committee his program would be "emasculated" in the new Congress.

Factionalism By Democrats Said No Good

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ohio Democrats cannot afford the luxury of factionalism, John Bailey, the party's national chairman, told an audience of 1,650 at a testimonial dinner for Ray T. Miller.

Miller, around whom a considerable portion of factionalism has swirled in the party's political storms of recent years, was honored Thursday night on his 70th birthday and for his 25 years as head of the Democratic organization in Cuyahoga County (Cleveland).

Bailey credited Miller and Gov. Michael V. DiSalle for making Ohio the first state outside New England to support President Kennedy's bid for nomination in 1960.

Bailey said "being a county leader is much more difficult than being a state chairman" because "you are so much closer to the people."

"When you have satisfied them for 25 years, you've done a great job," he said in tribute to Miller.

DiSalle, Cleveland Mayor Ralph S. Locher, and U.S. Sen. Stephen M. Young—all of whom have won elections against Miller's opposition—were among the speakers honoring Miller.

In acknowledging the tributes, Miller told the gathering:

"I do know the truth about myself—you are forgiving my many errors."

The recommendations include increasing the foundation program formula by $130 million in the next two years, plus additional appropriations of $5 million for school building rehabilitation and $30 million for school construction in needy districts.

Browns' Glamor May Diminish

Loss of Paul Brown As Coach Is Studied

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—The Cleveland Browns figure to lose more than a modicum of their glamor and gaudy appeal as Paul E. Brown passes from head coach to a desk-riding vice presidency.

Owner-president Arthur B. Modell, who came from New York ten years ago to buy the Browns for some $4 million, fired "precision Paul" Wednesday as coach and general manager of the National Football League team.

His contract, calling for somewhere between $50,000 and $80,000 a year and containing some stock-buying options, has six years to go.

"The Browns have been to me a personal family type of thing over the years, and I've been intensely proud of them," Paul said today as he chatted informally in his Shaker Heights home.

Brown said Modell told him last Monday he planned a drastic move relative to the coaching staff, and that they met Wednesday with their legal representatives for the formal meeting at which Modell announced his decision.

"I tried to talk to him in terms of a terminal settlement on salary which would set me free entirely," Brown said, "but met with no success. My contract was not broken by Mr. Modell, for my salary remains the same and only my duties are changed. I have no idea what the duties will be, but they must be something agreeable to me."

"Right now I have nothing in mind except to stay for the six years of the contract and it seems like I'll be starting all over at something new. There's no difference in the financial aspect. This just interrupts a segment of my lifetime effort."

For all their 17 years the Browns have been hailed by buckeye fans as an Ohio-owned team, coached by an Ohio favorite son, and with the roster dotted by Ohio players. Now, with outside ownership and an outside coach, there's a chance the Browns will lose that home-state sports pride and become just another business venture.

Royals Head For Pro Cage Playoff Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Royals, heading for almost a certain playoff berth, are lodged comfortably in third place in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association today. They're only a game and a half behind second-place Syracuse.

But where would they be without Oscar Robertson?

The Big O did it again Thursday night. He scored 41 points and snagged 17 rebounds as the Royals downed Boston, the Eastern Division leader, 120-121 in the only game scheduled.

Most of Robertson's heroics came in the final quarter. With Boston leading 100-98, he tied the game with a jump shot and quickly added eight straight points to put the Royals in front to stay. Cincinnati is nine games in front of fourth-place New York.

Bill Russell, sidelined Wednesday with a sore back, returned to the lineup and led the Celtics with 31 points.

Pro Cage All-Star Game Booked on TV

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Basketball Association's All-Star game in Los Angeles next week will be carried by television stations in at least 17 cities.

The East-West contest will be played Wednesday night, Jan. 16. The special network telecast will start at 8:15 p.m. PST (11:15 p.m., EST).

Cincy, Loyola Still Unbeaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The top-ranked Bearcats of Cincinnati and second-ranked Ramblers of Loyola reached the halfway mark of their schedules Thursday night with unblemished records.

Cincinnati's two-time NCAA champions, getting a 29-point performance from Ron Bonham, rang up victory No. 12 and their 30th in a row over a two-season span by whipping North Texas State 75-58 in a Missouri Valley Conference game.

Loyola's national scoring leader, sparked by Jerry Harkness' 26-point effort, pushed over the century mark for the eighth time, clobbering Western Michigan of the Mid-American Conference 107-69 for victory No. 15.

In two other Missouri Valley clashes, eighth-ranked Wichita used Dave Stallworth's 22 points and Ernie Moore's ball-hawking as the main weapons in a 71-65 triumph over St. Louis, and Tulsa defeated Drake 79-72 after a basket by sophomore Carlos Cripado broke it open.

William & Mary upended Virginia Tech 78-63 as Bob Harris scored 25 points and left West Virginia the only unbeaten team in the Southern Conference. In another league game, Furman hit six consecutive foul shots in the last 69 seconds to subdue Davidson 65-63.

Elsewhere, soph Rick Barry scored 31 points as once-beaten Miami, Fla., defeated Florida 86-77. Holy Cross got by Massachusetts 68-61, Providence beat Rhode Island 75-67, New Orleans Loyola edged Memphis State 78-75, Gonzaga, belted Washington State 73-56 and Pepperdine downed Hawaii 64-59.

Besides the Cincinnati - North Texas contest, only two other games were played Thursday night involving Ohio teams. In one of these, the stag was set for battle of unbeaten in the Ohio Conference race.

Ohio Wesleyan, getting a 21-point effort from Joel Daunic, downed Otterbein 78-72 to advance its conference record to 7-0 and move into a tie for the league leadership with Wittenberg, also 7-0. The two teams clash Saturday night at Springfield. Otterbein, now 2-7 overall and 0-6 in the conference, was led by Mike Vance who had 19 points.

Freshman Jim DeBerry led the winners with 20 while Brian Farney, also a plebe, paced the Lords with 13.

Frosh, Junior High Defeated At Mt. Logan

The Circleville freshmen and Junior High basketball teams lost a pair of cage contests to the Chillicothe Mt. Logan units at Chillicothe yesterday.

The freshmen, baffled by the Mt. Logan zone defense and slowed by poor shooting from the field, were swamped 52-24. They trailed 17-3 at the first quarter.

By halftime the margin was 26-14 and at the start of the final period the host team led 43-19. The local junior high team led 36-35 with less than five seconds to go, saw the Mt. Logan unit tie the score on a foul shot and then go on to win 40-36 in the overtime.

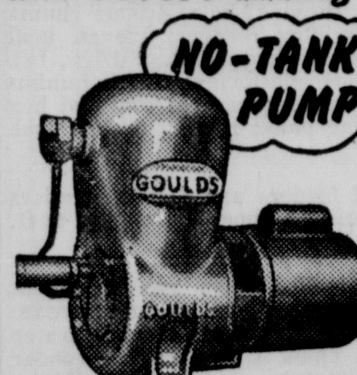

January 17 the junior high quintet hosts Western at 4 p. m. and the freshman met Miami Trace freshmen at 5:30 p. m. here.

Liston Says Florida Date Is No Good

NEW YORK (AP)—Unless this is all a lot of ballyhoo-and it might be-the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston rematch very well may be staged in a courtroom before it reaches a ring.

Patterson, who has the contractual rights to name the date, site and promoter, announced Wednesday that the fight would be held in Miami Beach, April 4, under the promotion of Championship Sports, Inc.

Liston's first reaction was that he was less than completely changed about it all. Then Thursday he came out with a firm "no."

Which means, at the moment, the fight is off again. Or at least up in the air.

Liston, of course, gained the title with a first-round knockout of Patterson in Chicago Sept. 23. Under the terms of the contract for that fight, Patterson holds the right to name the date, site and promoter. There also is a clause calling for a $1 million penalty in case Liston violates the contract.

Competition Aids Physical Fitness

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP)—Want schoolers? Make it competitive, says Tom Jones, coach at nearby Amelia.

Jones quit his high school track coach job to devote full time to a new physical training program he had started.

Jones says he didn't begin to get much response until he started handing out uniforms based on how well the boys did—red for the best, blue for average, white for poor.

"I can see a big difference this year," he says. "The enthusiasm is there. Whites are trying to become Blues. Blues trying to become Reds and Reds are just becoming better."

AAU Shouts 'Blackmail' At NCAA, Asks U.S. Probe

NEW YORK (AP)—Col. Don Hull of the Amateur Athletic Union, bitterly denouncing a policy statement by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, has called for a congressional investigation of the activities of the rival group.

Hull, executive director of the AAU, characterized a tough, four-point policy statement by the NCAA as a power-grab attempt, charged the NCAA with attempt-

His blistering statement, issued Thursday in the wake of the NCAA convention in Los Angeles, charged the collegiate group with "another in the series of NCAA blackmail attempts to destroy the AAU."

At issue was NCAA action Wednesday by which the 600 members are pledged to a policy that calls for withdrawal from membership in the AAU until the situation with that group improves; a boycott of AAU events not sanctioned by three new federations which have invaded fields governed by the AAU; withdrawal of all personnel from AAU committees in basketball, gymnastics and track and field, and a limitation on the use of facilities and equipment.

The long, complex struggle between the two groups has attracted the attention of President Kennedy, who voiced his concern over the adverse effect the squabble may have over the makeup of the 1964 U.S. Olympic team. He has asked Gen. Douglas MacArthur to mediate the dispute.

NCAA and AAU officials are expected to meet with MacArthur in the near future. "At a time when General of the Army Douglas MacArthur has called for the AAU and the NCAA to mediate the track and field controversy, the NCAA had adopted a four-point program designed to torpedo the chances of the United States in all international competitions, including the Pan American and Olympic Games," Hull said.

"The only effective means to get at the root of the NCAA grab for power," Hull continued, "is for a complete investigation of the activities of this association by the Congress of the United States. There are many questions which can only be answered in such an investigation. For example, the International Olympic Committee has questioned the NCAA policy on athletic scholarships."

Athletic Director Selected for Cubs

CHICAGO (AP)—Along with three vice presidents, 12 coaches and a record of being in the National League's second division deep freeze since 1946, the managerless Chicago Cubs now have an athletic director.

President P. K. Wrigley, in another baseball innovation, has pinned that title on Robert V. Whitlow, 43, who stands 6 feet 5, weighs 240 pounds and holds the rank of colonel in the U.S. Air Force.

A bystander—"I can't figure out just what he'll do unless it's keeping the coaches from getting mad at each other."

Ex-Semi-Pro Player Named Reds Director

CINCINNATI (AP)—William H. Zimmer, who says he once was a "pretty good second baseman with a .320 to .350 batting average" in semi-pro baseball, is the fourth new director of the Cincinnati Reds, Inc.

Zimmer, who left semi-pro baseball to become president of the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., was picked for the job Thursday by three other new directors as part of the settlement of a dispute about the Reds ownership.

Aussie Named As Woman Athlete of '62

NEW YORK (AP)—Australia's Dawn Fraser, the first woman to break the one minute barrier for the 100-meter swim, today was named Female Athlete of the Year for 1962 in the annual year-end poll of the Associated Press.

At the ripe old age of 25, when most women swimmers long have quit competition for weekend dips, the tall Melbourne blonde scored her breakthrough by churning 110 yards in 59.9 seconds in the Australian trials for the British Empire Games last October.

This broke her own world record of 60 seconds for the 110 yards and 100 meters (109 yards, 1 foot, 1 inch).

Then in the race for the gold medal in the Empire Games at Perth, the strapping champion lowered her mark for 110 yards and 100 meters to 59.6 seconds.

Wondrous Wilma, still the world's fastest female sprinter, was a close second this time. Marion Ladewig, the attractive, 48-year-old bowling grandmother and champion from Grand Rapids, Mich., was third; Darlene Hard, top-ranking American women's tennis player was fourth, and Margaret Smith, Australia's outstanding tennis star, was fifth.

Casper Holds Lead In San Diego Open

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Billy Casper Jr., the amiable round man of golf, has won many major tournaments.

But one that has escaped him is the $25,000 San Diego Open held in his home town.

The 1959 National Open champion made another move to correct this as he led the way into the second round of the event today.

One stroke back of Casper were PGA Champion Gary Player of South Africa, Tony Lama of San Leandro, Calif., and Stan Leonard of Canada.

Syracuse is in its 63rd intercollegiate basketball season.

Tiger Matmen Set for PV Invitational

The Circleville High School wrestling team is slated to compete in the Pleasant View Invitational meet scheduled to start at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Two weeks later they were defeated in their first home appearance by Whitehall and last week they lost to Worthington, in a match that was closer than the final 28-11 score indicated.

The Tiger team is weak in the lighter weight divisions this year. No Red and Black grappler competing in the first three weights has registered a win.

DEVER JOLLY is currently pacing the unit with two pins and a decision. Jolly made his first appearance in the 154-pound division. Since then the Tiger grappler has trimmed down to the 145 weight limit and has registered two pins.

Tim Mogan is the only other team member to earn three wins. Going in the 133-pound class in all three starts, he has garnered two decisions and one pin.

Jack Cook, the Tiger 127-pound grappler, has a pin and a decision to his credit and has lost only to Whitehall's defending district champion Al Rosenblum.

Other Red and Black wrestlers to gain wins this year are Jerry Francis, Larry Adams, Duke Fyfe, Howard Fletcher, Tom Bivens, Leroy Hagen.

Date To Be Set For Horse Show

A group of members of the Pickaway Saddle and Bridle Club will attend the Tri State Horse Show Assn. meeting Jan. 23 in Cincinnati, it was announced yesterday by an executive committee spokesman of the unit.

The date for the annual spring Kiwanis Charity Horse Show will be set at that time.

The committee met Wednesday in the home of Allen Ankrom to discuss plans for the coming year. Other decisions made by the policy making committee included the membership drive slated for February.

The next regular meeting of the club will be 7:30 p. m. Jan. 23 in the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

"I tried to talk to him in terms of a terminal settlement on salary which would set me free entirely," Brown said, "but met with no success. My contract was not broken by Mr. Modell, for my salary remains the same and only my duties are changed. I have no idea what the duties will be, but they must be something agreeable to me.

"Right now I have nothing in mind except to stay for the six years of the contract and it seems like I'll be starting all over at something new. There's no difference in the financial aspect. This just interrupts a segment of my lifetime effort."

For all their 17 years the Browns have been hailed by buckeye fans as an Ohio-owned team, coached by an Ohio favorite son, and with the roster dotted by Ohio players. Now, with outside ownership and an outside coach, there's a chance the Browns will lose that home-state sports pride and become just another business venture.

Royals Head For Pro Cage Playoff Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Royals, heading for almost a certain playoff berth, are lodged comfortably in third place in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association today. They're only a game and a half behind second-place Syracuse.

But where would they be without Oscar Robertson?

The Big O did it again Thursday night. He scored 41 points and snagged 17 rebounds as the Royals downed Boston, the Eastern Division leader, 130-121 in the only game scheduled.

Most of Robertson's heroics came in the final quarter. With Boston leading 100-98, he tied the game with a jump shot and quickly added eight straight points to put the Royals in front to stay.

Bill Russell, sidelined Wednesday with a sore back, returned to the lineup and led the Celtics with 31 points.

Pro Cage All-Star Game Booked on TV

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Basketball Association's All-Star game in Los Angeles next week will be carried by television stations in at least 17 cities.

The East-West contest will be played Wednesday night, Jan. 16. The special network telecast will start at 8:15 p.m. PST (11:15 p.m., EST).

Umpire Ed Runge worked the most baseball games in Yankee Stadium last season — 46.

Cincy, Loyola Still Unbeaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The top-ranked Bearcats of Cincinnati and second-ranked Ramblers of Loyola reached the halfway mark of their schedules Thursday night with unblemished records.

Cincinnati's two-time NCAA champions, getting a 29-point performance from Ron Bonham, rang up victory No. 12 and their 30th in a row over a two-season span by whipping North Texas State 75-58 in a Missouri Valley Conference game.

Loyola's national scoring leaders, sparked by Jerry Harkness' 26-point effort, pushed over the century mark for the eighth time, clobbering Western Michigan of the Mid-American Conference 107-69 for victory No. 15.

In two other Missouri Valley clashes, eighth-ranked Wichita used Dave Stallworth's 22 points and Ernie Moore's ball-hawking as the main weapons in a 71-65 triumph over St. Louis, and Tulsa defeated Drake 79-72 after a basket by sophomore Carlos Crispado broke it open.

William & Mary upended Virginia Tech 78-63 as Bob Harris scored 25 points and left West Virginia the only unbeaten team in the Southern Conference. In another league game, Furman hit six consecutive foul shots in the last 69 seconds to subdue Davidson 65-63.

Elsewhere, soph Rick Barry scored 31 points at once-beaten Miami, Fla., defeated Florida 86-77. Holy Cross got by Massachusetts 68-61. Providence beat Rhode Island 75-67. New Orleans Loyola edged Memphis State 78-75. Gonzaga, belted Washington State 73-56 and Pepperdine downed Hawaii 64-59.

Besides the Cincinnati - North Texas contest, only two other games were played Thursday night involving Ohio teams. In one of these, the stag's was set for battle of unbeaten in the Ohio Conference race.

Ohio Wesleyan, getting a 21-point effort from Joel Daunic, downed Otterbein 78-72 to advance its conference record to 7-0 and move into a tie for the league leadership with Wittenberg, also 7-0. The two teams clash Saturday night at Springfield. Otterbein, now 2-7 overall and 0-6 in the conference, was led by Mike Vance who had 19 points.

Capital's Lutherans put on the steam in the closing minutes to defeat Kenyon 59-46 in another Ohio Conference fray. With the score tied at 36 with 10 minutes left, the Caps tightened their zone defense and began to pull away.

Freshman Jim DeBerry led the winners with 20 while Brian Farney, also a plebe, paced the Lords with 13.

Frosh, Junior High Defeated At Mt. Logan

The Circleville freshmen and Junior High basketball teams lost a pair of cage contests to the Chillicothe Mt. Logan units at Chillicothe yesterday.

The freshmen, baffled by the Mt. Logan zone defense and slowed by poor shooting from the field, were swamped 52-24. They trailed 17-3 at the first quarter. By halftime the margin was 26-14 and at the start of the final period the host team led 43-19.

The local junior high team led 36-35 with less than five seconds to go, saw the Mt. Logan unit tie the score on a foul shot and then go on to win 40-36 in the overtime.

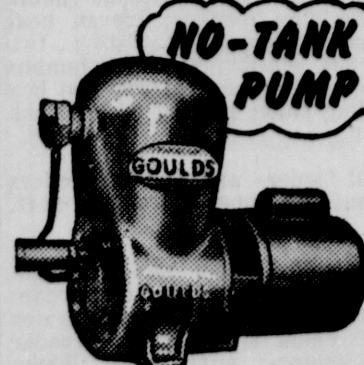

January 17 the junior high quintet hosts Western at 4 p. m. and the freshman met Miami Trace freshmen at 5:30 p. m. here.

LION ENRAGED — According to reports out of Detroit, Alex Karras, star defensive tackle for the Lions, has threatened to quit pro football if the club management forces him to give up joint ownership of Detroit tavern.

Liston Says Florida Date Is No Good

NEW YORK (AP)—Unless this is all a lot of ballyhoo-and it might be the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston rematch very well may be staged in a courtroom before it reaches a ring.

Patterson, who has the contractual rights to name the date, site and promoter, announced Wednesday that the fight would be held in Miami Beach, April 4, under the promotion of Championship Sports, Inc.

Liston's first reaction was that he was less than completely enchanted about it all. Then Thursday he came out with a firm "no."

Which means, at the moment, the fight is off again. Or at least up in the air.

Actually, neither Patterson nor Liston are making their comments directly. They're coming through attorneys, advisors and such like. Patterson's attorney, Julius November and Liston's advisor, Jack Nilon.

Liston, of course, gained the title with a first-round knockout of Patterson in Chicago Sept. 23. Under the terms of the contract for that fight, Patterson holds the right to name the date, site and promoter. There also is a clause calling for a $1 million penalty in case Liston violates the contract.

Competition Aids Physical Fitness

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP) — Want schoolers? Make it competitive, says Tom Jones, coach at nearby Amelia.

Jones quit his high school track coach job to devote full time to a new physical training program he had started.

Jones says he didn't begin to get much response until he started handing out uniforms based on how well the boys did—red for the best, blue for average, white for poor.

"I can see a big difference this year," he says. "The enthusiasm is there. Whites are trying to become Blues. Blues trying to become Reds and Reds are just becoming better."

AAU Shouts 'Blackmail!' At NCAA, Asks U.S. Probe

NEW YORK (AP)—Col. Don Hull of the Amateur Athletic Union, bitterly denouncing a policy statement by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, has called for a congressional investigation of the activities of the rival group.

Hull, executive director of the AAU, characterized a tough, four-point policy statement by the NCAA as a power-grab attempt, charged the NCAA with attempt-

Ice Fishing Remains 'Good'

Warm Weather Fails To Dim Ohio Chances

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Wildlife Division reports that ice conditions remain fairly good in the state despite the warmer weather of recent days. The ice-fishing prospects by areas:

Lake Erie and Sandusky Bay: Good catches of perch are being reported from most areas in Sandusky Bay, Catawba Point, and around Put-In-Bay. In addition to the large catches of perch a few smelt also are being caught, particularly around the Bass Islands.

Northwestern: Ice conditions here are fairly good but have deteriorated during the past several days. Where ice is good crappies, perch and bluegills are being caught.

Northeastern: Ice fishing is spotty, running from poor to good depending on the area. Best spots seem to be Mogadore, Aquilla and Punderson where bluegills, perch and crappies make up most of the catches. The ice at Punderson Lake is safe, but fishing is reported as only fair.

Eastern and southeastern: Ice fishing reported from two Muskingum lakes, Clendening and Tappan. Both of these lakes have 10 to 15 inches of ice and bluegill and crappie fishing is said to be good to good.

Central and southern: Fishing is generally poor with Rocky Fork Lake said to be the best, with some crappies and bluegills being taken. Very few ice fishermen reported from other lakes.

Southwestern: Conditions range from good to poor. Bluegills and crappies are being taken at Grant, Acton, Kiser, Spring Valley, Indian and Lorame. Fishing is generally fair. No large catches have been reported, however.

Ex-Semi-Pro Player Named Reds Director

CINCINNATI (AP)—William H. Zimmer, who says he once was a "pretty good second baseman with a .320 to .350 batting average" in semi-pro baseball, is the fourth new director of the Cincinnati Reds, Inc.

Zimmer, who left semi-pro baseball to become president of the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., was picked for the job Thursday by three other new directors as part of the settlement of a dispute about the Reds ownership.

Aussie Named As Woman Athlete of '62

NEW YORK (AP)—Australia's Dawn Fraser, the first woman to break the one minute barrier for the 100-meter swim, today was named Female Athlete of the Year for 1962 in the annual year-end poll of the Associated Press.

At the ripe old age of 25, when most women swimmers long have quit competition for weekend dips, the tall Melbourne blonde scored her breakthrough by churning 110 yards in 59.9 seconds in the Australian trials for the British Empire Games last October.

This broke her own world record of 60 seconds for the 110 yards and 100 meters (109 yards, 1 foot, 1 inch).

Then in the race for the gold medal in the Empire Games at Perth, the strapping champion lowered her mark for 110 yards and 100 meters to 59.6 seconds.

Miss Fraser, a staff supervisor in the fashion department of a large retail store in Melbourne, succeeds the fabulous Wilma Rudolph, winner of the Athlete of the Year trophy in 1960 and 1961.

Wondrous Wilma, still the world's fastest female sprinter, was a close second this time. Marion Ladewig, the attractive, 48-year-old bowling grandmother and champion from Grand Rapids, Mich., was third; Darlene Hard, top-ranking American women's tennis player was fourth, and Margaret Smith, Australia's outstanding tennis star, was fifth.

Casper Holds Lead In San Diego Open

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Billy Casper Jr., the amiable round man of golf, has won many major tournaments.

But one that has escaped him is the $25,000 San Diego Open held in his home town.

The 1959 National Open champion made another move to correct this as he led the way into the second round of the event today.

The 31-year-old pro, who plays out of Apple Valley, Calif., shot an initial 64, seven under par, for a one-stroke lead.

One stroke back of Casper were PGA Champion Gary Player of South Africa, Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., and Stan Leonard of Canada.

Tiger Matmen Set for PV Invitational

The Circleville High School wrestling team is slated to compete in the Pleasant View Invitational meet scheduled to start at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Dave LaBounty's grapplers have won a lone match in three encounters to date. The team won its first meet at Grove City, 29-18.

Two weeks later they were defeated in their first home appearance by Whitehall and last week they lost to Worthington, in a match that was closer than the final 28-11 score indicated.

The Tiger team is weak in the lighter weight divisions this year. No Red and Black grappler competing in the first three weights has registered a win.

DEVER JOLLY is currently pacing the unit with two pins and a decision. Jolly made his first appearance in the 154-pound division. Since then the Tiger grappler has trimmed down to the 145 weight limit and has registered two pins.

Tim Mogan is the only other team member to earn three wins. Going in the 133-pound class in all three starts, he has garnered two decisions and one pin.

Jack Cook, the Tiger 127-pound grappler, has a pin and a decision to his credit and has lost only to Whitehall's defending district champion Al Rosenblum.

Date To Be Set For Horse Show

A group of members of the Pickaway Saddle and Bridle Club will attend the Tri State Horse Show Assn. meeting Jan. 23 in Cincinnati, it was announced yesterday by an executive committee spokesman of the unit.

The date for the annual spring Kiwanis Charity Horse Show will be set at that time.

The committee met Wednesday in the home of Aften Ankrom to discuss plans for the coming year. Other decisions made by the policy making committee included the membership drive slated for February.

The next regular meeting of the club will be 7:30 p. m. Jan. 23 in the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Presser Asks Stay against His Sentence

CLEVELAND (AP)—An attorney for William Presser, Ohio Teamsters leader, has asked U.S. District Court here to stay the execution of Presser's eight-month sentence for obstructing justice.

Presser, president of Teamsters Joint Council 41, is free on bond pending the outcome of the hearing on three motions filed Wednesday. No hearing date was set immediately.

The latest move came after the U.S. Supreme Court served notice on U.S. District Court here that it has denied a re-hearing petition by Presser on a conviction of obstructing justice.

The high court upheld that conviction by a de vote Nov 13. The eight-month federal prison term was imposed on Presser after a Cleveland jury convicted him on June 7, 1960, of charges he mutilated union records which a Senate rackets committee had subpoenaed.

Edward Knachel, an attorney for Presser, filed the motion for a stay of execution along with another motion requesting probation. A third motion sought clarification of the sentence.

The attorney asked the court to stay execution until Feb. 4 so that the 55-year-old Presser could wind up his business affairs.

Presser Asks Stay against His Sentence

CLEVELAND (AP)—An attorney for William Presser, Ohio Teamsters leader, has asked U.S. District Court here to stay the execution of Presser's eight-month sentence for obstructing justice.

Presser, president of Teamsters Joint Council 41, is free on bond pending the outcome of the hearing on three motions filed Wednesday. No hearing date was set immediately.

The latest move came after the U.S. Supreme Court served notice on U.S. District Court here that it has denied a re-hearing petition by Presser on a conviction of obstructing justice.

The high court upheld that conviction by a tie vote Nov. 13. The eight-month federal prison term was imposed on Presser after a Cleveland jury convicted him on June 7, 1960, of charges he mutilated union records which a Senate racket committee had subpoenaed.

Edward Knachel, an attorney for Presser, filed the motion for a stay of execution along with another motion requesting probation. A third motion sought clarification of the sentence.

The attorney asked the court to stay execution until Feb. 4 so that the 55-year-old Presser could wind up his business affairs.
